

Trapped in shark's jaws once, he says he has no fears of 2nd encounter

But bumping into a sea otter almost gave him heart attack

LODI (AP) — A man who was trapped in the jaws of a great white shark and lived to tell about it says he still goes skin diving in the ocean and has no fears of another such encounter.

"I've never heard of anyone being attacked more than once," Helmut Himmrich, 35, said in an interview.

But he recalled having "the feeling of knowing I was going to die" while in the shark's grip, and said he never has understood why he was spared by the man-eater — an over-size version of which is terrifying audiences in the record-breaking film "Jaws."

Himmrich, a maintenance mechanic in this town 75 miles east of San Francisco, bears deep scars and a paralyzed right foot from the attack that occurred May 28, 1972, while he was diving for abalone with friends from a boat in Marin County's Tomales Bay.

He recalled the incident as follows:

"...I felt something big moving between my legs. I flinched and he grabbed hold of my right leg, between the buttock and the knee."

"...It was like being caught in a vise with someone really clamping down on it...I was completely at his mercy and there was no mercy out there in the ocean."

"Then he brought me up right out of the water, except my head and chest, which were in the water. I was hanging there like a jackknife and he was shaking me like a dog shaking a rag."

"There was great pain, especially when he ripped all my hamstring muscles...He was carrying me toward the boat when I started screaming for help. I don't know why, but he let me go then."

Himmrich, who was pulled aboard the boat by his friends, never saw the shark, which one of the friends described as "every bit of 12 feet long and so broad it would have been hard for me to put my arms around his head." Tooth fragments pulled from Himmrich's wounds identified the shark as a great white.

John McCosker, head of the Steinhart Aquarium here, said great white sharks are "not particularly antagonistic to man, they're just hungry all the time and probably think divers in black wet suits are clumsy seal pups."

"...Sharks are out there all the time, but the danger factor is so small that I don't really think about it," said McCosker, himself a diver. "They're not going to stop me from diving."

They haven't stopped Himmrich, either — though he says his career nearly ended recently when he was skin diving off Monterey and a harmless sea otter bumped into him.

"I almost had a heart attack," he said.

Spaceships linked, but crews cautious over 'burning odor'

CHOW BREAK FOR THE GOVERNOR

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., center, takes a lunch break with Gen. Frederick Weyand, Army chief-of-staff, at Ft. Irwin near Barstow Wednesday. Brown said during a visit to summer training of the California National Guard that the guard should play a larger role in national defense because it "can do the job at less cost." He also visited a space center.

Apollo commander believes problem can be overcome

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The American Apollo and Soviet Soyuz spaceships linked up in space today and minutes later the American commander reported a strange burning smell coming from a tunnel connecting the two craft.

But Thomas P. Stafford and Houston Mission Control expressed confidence the problem was not a major one and would be quickly overcome.

Stafford, after assessing the situation, quickly assured the Soviet commander: "We have a little problem. I think we have somewhat of a bad atmosphere here. I think soon that we will no longer have any problems."

The control center advised the astronauts the smell might be coming from a small furnace located in the docking module that is used in metals melting experiments.

"There is little concern here in the control room," a communicator told the spacemen.

The Soviet commander, Alexei Leonov, also reported that "some of your bad atmosphere" has seeped into the Soyuz.

Just before the Apollo sped out of radio contact with the ground, Stafford reported, "The smell has dropped and is not bad any more."

Stafford also reported that they had smelled the same odor in the vehicle two days ago, but it was not as bad then.

"Let's cross our fingers for a minute," Stafford said. "We've got some oxygen masks standing by so we can put them on. No sweat."

If there is no problem, Stafford and Leonov were prepared to enter the tunnel later in the afternoon for their long-awaited "handshake in space."

The ships executed the first ever linkup of American and Soviet space vehicles at 11:09 a.m. EDT, and American commander Thomas P. Stafford shouted "We have succeeded!"

His enthusiasm quickly shifted to caution when the crew reported what Stafford described as a "weird smell."

"It smells like cordite," he reported. Cordite is an ingredient in gunpowder.

Stafford said they first noticed the smell when astronaut Donald K. Slayton opened a hatch leading into a connecting tunnel between the two spaceships.

"Vance and I got it right in our face," the commander said.

Shortly afterwards he said the smell seemed to have dissipated a bit, but Houston Mission Control advised that at least one of the crewmen donned an oxygen mask as a precaution.

Houston Control advised the astronauts to delay the atmosphere mixing procedures intended to precede a transfer by Stafford and Slayton through the tunnel into the Soyuz vehicle to visit cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov.

The maneuvers had been precise, and when the two mission control centers, in Houston and Moscow, gave the go-ahead to dock, the Apollo moved right in on Soyuz.

Television viewers on earth had a dramatic ringside seat as a camera pointed out the Apollo window showed the Soyuz against a brilliant blue earth horizon.

Slowly, Apollo slipped below the Russian vehicle and then moved in. The picture showed a slight shaking of the Soyuz as the ships linked.

"We have succeeded," the American commander, Stafford exclaimed.

"Tell Professor Bushuyev we had a soft dock," Leonov then radioed Moscow Control.

Mammoth
3-nation
wheat deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirmation of another U.S.-Soviet wheat deal was announced today by the Agriculture Department, bringing to 3.2 million tons the total amount of wheat officially sold to the Russians this year.

At the same time, the Canadian Wheat Board announced the sale of two million long tons of wheat, approximately 74.6 million bushels, to the Soviet Union.

The USDA has said the Russian purchases from the Americans, amounting to about 118 million bushels, will have little effect on food prices at U.S. supermarkets.

The department said Wednesday that Cook Industries Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., has sold two million metric tons and Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis said it was completing arrangements to sell another 1.2 million tons.

The department's formal announcement today said that 1.2 million tons had been sold to the Russians but did not identify the seller. However, a department spokesman said it was Cargill.

There were unconfirmed rumors of additional deals involving wheat and other grains. One exporter, Bunge Corp. of New York, said, "We have been in conversation with them (the Russians), but nothing has jelled."

The 1975 wheat crop has been estimated at a record of 59.5 million metric tons. Thus, the sale of two million tons represents less than 3.4 per cent of the crop and 3.2 million tons, counting Cargill's prospects, would be less than 5.4 per cent.

If the Russians buy as much as five million tons of wheat, as USDA officials think they might, that amount would represent 8.4 per cent of this year's crop.

Department experts have estimated that total U.S. wheat exports in the 1975-76 season could run between 28.6 million and 32.7 million tons, equal to one half or more of this year's harvest.

Donald Nelson, professor of marine biology at California State University at Long Beach, said great white sharks attack an average of one victim a year along Northern California coasts. About 50 attacks by sharks of all kinds are reported worldwide each year, half of them fatal.

Japanese royalty firebombed on Okinawa

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Two young radicals hurled gasoline bombs at Japan's crown prince and princess on Okinawa today while in Tokyo hundreds of feuding radicals fought each other at a railway station, leaving one dead.

Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko escaped injury in the attack at a war memorial they were visiting shortly after arriving on a controversial three-day trip to Okinawa. One of the prince's aides was slightly injured when the two radicals jumped out of an underground tomb surrounded by trees and hurled the bombs, police said. One landed near the prince's foot and burst into flames.

Demonstrators are demanding a formal apology from Akihito's father, Emperor Hirohito, as an expression of responsibility for Okinawa's suffering during World War II when it was a major battleground. It remained under U.S. military control until 1972.

The Tokyo fighting erupted as one faction, returning from a demonstration at Tokyo airport against the prince's visit to Okinawa, arrived at busy Shimbashi Station in central Tokyo at the same time as 400 members of a rival faction.

Police said 43 persons were injured, including seven policemen and several train passengers. More than 300 persons were arrested. The fracas held up traffic on major commuter lines for more than one hour.

Before today's fighting, 16 persons had died this year in clashes among rival radical factions, police said.

'Building biggest firecracker in history'

Legislator flays U.S. arms exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. firms last fiscal year increased their weapons sales to the oil-rich nation of Kuwait by 1,922 per cent, preliminary Defense Department figures show.

During the same period, arms sales to South Korea jumped by 168 per cent and to Saudi Arabia by 133.6 per cent.

The figures released today by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., showed that the sale of 348 F16 fighter jets to four NATO countries for $2.12 billion was the largest single transaction for fiscal 1975.

During the year, which ended June 30, foreign military sales increased almost 9 per cent to $9.045 billion.

The United States, said Aspin, "has continued its mindless export of highly sophisticated weapons to whomever asks for them, at a faster pace than ever."

More than $4.2 billion in weapons were sold with Pentagon and State Department approval to three Persian Gulf states — Iran, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Sales to Kuwait rose from $18.1 million in fiscal 1974 to $365.9 million, while the total for Saudi Arabia increased from $588 million to $1.37 billion.

Sales to Israel totalled $868.3 million last year.

Cash and credit arms sales to South Korea jumped 168 per cent, the listing showed — from $81.4 million in fiscal 1974 to $217.6 million in fiscal 1975.

Jets, missiles, tanks, ships and other weapons systems went to a total of 72 countries. The largest single buyer was Iran, with a total of $2.48 billion in purchases.

Lt. Gen. H.M. Fish Jr., director of the Defense Security Assistance Agency, said Wednesday that about 80 per cent of the arms went to the Middle East.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., told Fish: "You're building the biggest firecracker in history."

Fish testified before a House panel on a proposed $350-million missile and gun sale to Jordan.

Teamster field hands strike: threat to crops

SANTA MARIA (AP) — About 2,500 Teamsters-represented farm workers went on strike along the Central California coast today, idling harvesting and shipping of vegetables from Santa Maria to San Luis Obispo.

Burt Curto, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 865, said the laborers failed to report to their jobs at 6 a.m., idling work on lettuce, celery, beet and rutabaga and crops in the lush coastal region.

Curto said "the farming industry should come to a stop" because of the strike.

The Teamsters Union had threatened to strike since earlier in the week when negotiations with growers failed to produce new contracts.

Today's strike came on the heels of reports that an agreement might be reached by today.

"I cannot give you the details, but I think we will have an agreement within the next few hours," M.E. "Andy" Anderson, head of the Western Conference of Teamsters, said shortly after midnight today in Salinas.

A union spokesman said Wednesday night that the union "was on the verge of agreement" with the Western Growers Association on new contracts.

At that time, Teamsters warned that if a strike became necessary it would affect the Salinas Valley, the "salad bowl" where 70 per cent of the nation's head lettuce is grown. The harvest there is approaching its peak.

There was no immediate indication why the Teamsters chose to strike the coastal region, southwest of the Salinas Valley, instead.

Animals recover from lung damage

Monkeys, smog get along

DAVIS (AP) — An experiment with monkeys shows signs that the body may be able to immunize itself against moderate doses of smog, a researcher says.

Breathing simulated Los Angeles-type smog, the monkeys at first suffered lung damage, but then started to recover even while inhaling the polluted air, Dr. Donald Dungworth said Wednesday.

After 90 days of breathing air like that of Los Angeles on a summer day, the animals' lungs had returned to normal, the British-born scientist said.

Even at levels approaching those of the smoggiest Southern California days, there was marked improvement over time, Dungworth said.

He also said that heavy doses of Vitamin E appeared to give laboratory rats some protection against smog.

The 37 rhesus and bonnet monkeys were used in the tests at the University of California's Davis campus because their bodies' physical reactions resemble those of humans.

Dungworth said they were exposed to levels of ozone, the major component of smog, ranging from 0.2 to 0.8 parts per million parts of air for eight hours a day, seven days a week.

He said nearly every day in the Los Angeles basin last summer had at least one hour exceeding 0.2 ppm. About one day in 10 exceeded 0.5. Past readings have topped 0.8.

The lung damage was described as lesions on respiratory bronchioles, air passages which lead to the lungs.

Dungworth said the lesions gradually worsened for the first few days. But after a week at 0.2 ppm., the monkeys' lungs started to improve, and after 90 days they were back to normal, he said.

Lesser but still substantial improvement was seen in monkeys exposed to 0.5 ppm., and virtually none at 0.8, Dungworth said.

None of the monkeys started the test with lung problems, Dungworth said. He speculated that lung disease would retard the recovery process.

In the vitamin E tests, Dungworth said doses of 10 times the normal intake appeared to make the rats less susceptible to lung damage. He said the experiments would be repeated with monkeys, which more closely resemble humans.

Mobil Oil Co.

Once the flow was discovered, the basin was boomed off, but more than a dozen pleasure craft moored at the San Pedro Boatworks were already wallowing in the oil slick by that time.

An 80-foot schooner, Destiny, once owned by the late movie actress Marion Davies, was moored for repairs. Its current owner, George Valkesgaard, said he was awakened about 5:30 a.m. by the smell of fumes.

Going topside, he discovered the Destiny floating in black oil.

Despite the unhappiness of the pleasure boat owners, a Harbor Department spokesman said damage was "minimal."

Thick, gooey, smelly oil greases harbor

LOS ANGELES—Thick, gooey oil spreading over 10 acres in the Los Angeles harbor was expected to be cleaned up by today, but several pleasure craft were still coated with the smelly stuff.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles Harbor Department said at least six boats, a skimmer, a vacuum truck and 5,000 feet of floating boom were used to hem in the bunker oil before it could drift from the West Channel to the main harbor in San Pedro Wednesday.

Chino board rejects move to increase tax rate 8 cents

Taxpayers in Chino received a break this week when the school board rejected administrators' recommendations to increase the tax rate by eight cents.

In approving a $14.9 million publication budget Tuesday, board members retained the one-cent total tax decrease predicted in the tentative budget. Although it still could change, the rate is now estimated at $5.1762 per $100 assessed valuation.

After building up reserves to $520,271 through cutbacks in the tentative budget, the board decided to lop off $100,000 from the surplus to avoid a tax increase.

Trustee Al McCombs, who suggested the move, indicated the board wanted to establish good faith with district residents. "If we show the people we're tax conscious, maybe they'll go along with our (upcoming $8.5 million) bond issue."

Supt. Royce Lapp explained that an eight-cent increase in the unified tax was allowed under Senate Bill 90. Reason for the suggested change was a $12,404,375 increase in assessed valuation, he added. "The affect of this was to decrease state apportionment and increase local income by just over eight cents."

Lapp warned that failure to levy a permissive tax under SB 90 may result in a lost opportunity forever.

Trustees earlier had called for cutbacks in the tentative budget, and administrators made them. In fact, a combination of $112,628 in increased income and $185,859 in expenditure cutbacks resulted in $293,000 being added to reserves.

Many of the cutbacks came after actual ending figures became known from the 1974-75 school year, said Lapp.

"We went through the budget line by line," he added. "There were only minor changes in the educational program. We added one speech teacher and federal projects are more definite."

Various cuts were in areas of transfer students, carryover charges, a vocational budget decrease of $5,000, revisions of salaries, and a $20,000 bus purchase deferral. Overtime for classified employees and additional classified substitutes were also cut.

The budget still includes an 8.5 per cent salary boost for all employees and a three per cent increase for educational advancement and experience.

A final budget will be considered for approval during the first week of August, after a public hearing.

In other business, trustees, in a split 3-2 vote, turned down a motion by member Roy Ward to change the fulltime vice principal's position at Boys Republic to teaching vice principal.

Trustee Lyle Briggs, Al McCombs and Board President Augie Tapia voted against the motion, while Ward and Pete VanderPoel supported it.

Ward claimed the district could save perhaps $16,000 by changing the position, but Lapp indicated a savings would not be realized because of a loss of state monies, based on attendance and staff.

Teachers union files $900,000 libel suit against ex-principal

A $900,000 libel suit has been filed by a Chino teachers' union against Chino High School principal Terry L. Terril, alleging that Terril injured the union with charges of "unprofessional conduct."

The suit, filed by the Chino Federation of Teachers (CFT), says Terril exposed the AFL-CIO affiliate to ridicule by published comments in three local newspapers.

Terril resigned in April, issuing a blast at a handful of teachers who he indicated were troublemakers. He identified them as members of CFT, who are tenured and "like working short hours and getting big pay."

The suit, filed last week in West Valley Superior Court, Ontario, asks $100,000 in general damages and $200,000 in exemplary damages for each of three news stories detailing Terril's charges against the union.

The stories were published in the Progress Bulletin and two other area newspapers.

CFT denies Terril's accusations, and the suit claims the charges are "false and defamatory and were known to be so by the defendant."

They were repeated "maliciously, and with hatred and ill will toward the union and its members," the suit alleges.

Although a suit has not yet been filed against the Chino Unified School District, a claim for damages was forwarded to district officials, based on the fact they employed Terril, a CFT spokesman disclosed.

Terril, whose resignation is effective Aug. 15, left his post this week and could not be reached for comment.

The suit was signed by Linda Olson, CFT president. The union is being represented by Los Angeles attorney Henry Fenton.

END OF A BIKE PATH

Aboard a city of Claremont tractor, Eugene Palmer, city maintenance foreman, uses the tractor's blade to up-end an asphalt berm on the west side of Cambridge Avenue in Claremont. The berm formed a border for a bicycle path for school children attending El Roble Intermediate School, but the young cyclists, taught to use the right side of the street, did as they were taught. Guiding the operation is Phil Soto, city employee.

Claremont's 1st bike path fails; 'kids not using it'

Claremont's first bicycle path, built as part of Cambridge Avenue when the north-south street was officially opened between Bonita Avenue and the railroad tracks Nov. 12, 1974, has been declared a failure.

City streets employees this week ripped up an 8-inch-high asphalt berm, which formed the easterly boundary of the 8-foot-wide bicycle path and trucked away the chunks of material.

Few apartment residents who have complained about the path were on hand for the proceedings.

They opposed it because it caused problems such as parking, U-turns and access to driveways.

On rainy days, they had to park at the berm, and cross the flooded bike path to get to the curb and sidewalk.

Public Works Director Paul Cook was given the task of including a bike path in the plans for building Cambridge Avenue when he arrived on the job last fall.

A six-month study of the riding habits of Cambridge Avenue bicyclists revealed that they use the right-hand side of the street in the morning on their way to school because that was what they were taught to do, and the bike path is on their left in the morning.

Even in the afternoon, about 60 to 70 per cent used the bike path, with the remainder going on the sidewalk or the street.

Cook said he feels "the state of the art is definitely against two-way bike lanes unless they are separated completely from street and sidewalk."

Cook said that other cities have experimented with bike lanes without success.

One resident passing by the demolished bikeway was Arvin Meredith, who lives at 750 W. Bonita Ave., but uses the driveway off Cambridge Avenue.

Meredith theorized that the youngsters must have had some idea the bike path was private because "they shied away from it."

Meredith said there was a "complete lack of necessity" for a bike path. "The cost of it was a waste of the taxpayer's money."

He said the children used the street and sidewalks for their bikes. Dave Grover, 30-year-old resident in Claremont and former employee at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, said he thought the bike path should have been retained.

"What impressed me most was how few kids used it," he said.

The Claremont Traffic Safety Commission at its June meeting noted that the bike path was put in on a trial basis, and recommended that the path be taken out because the kids were not using it.

The City Council last week approved the recommendation.

Gas tax fund may go to rapid transit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The state will be urged to divert $552,000 from 1975-76 gasoline tax revenue reserved for freeway construction to a "starter" rapid transit line in Los Angeles County.

Southern California Rapid Transit District directors also urged the state in a revised application they approved Wednesday to earmark another $5.5 million for the "starter" line and to reserve other funds for the project through 1980-81.

Transit district officials reduced anticipated gas tax funding available over the next six years for the "starter" project from the previously estimated $96 million to about $77 million.

Jack R. Gilstrap, general manager of the SCRTD, said the new request of funds was necessitated because state officials had failed to approve the transit district's request for 1974-75 funds on the ground all of last year's gas tax revenue was needed for highways.

In another action, SCRTD directors approved a $2.9 million transit improvement plan for the San Gabriel Valley, which will add 45 buses to upgrade service to 26 communities starting Jan. 1.

Suspect in kidnaping of two is arraigned

Ross Ruiz Valencia, 46-year-old kidnap suspect, was arraigned Wednesday in Pomona Municipal Court, the day after he was returned from Canada to face charges that he abducted a young Valinda woman and her child March 17.

Valencia, of North Hollywood, was arraigned before Judge James Platt who ordered him held in lieu of $100,000 bail. July 28 was set for a review of the amount of bail.

Sheriff's officers had been trying to return the suspect since he was first seized in Canada with the woman and her child last April. The first attempt failed when Canadian officials abruptly released Valencia after studying the case. He was nabbed again however, about 10 days later by Canadian police who stopped him for a traffic violation in the province of Ontario.

Again the two alleged victims, Mrs. Maria Teresa Rivera, 23, and her daughter, Dennyse, 4, were with him. This time he was held for an extradition hearing and Mrs. Rivera and Dennyse returned to their Valinda home with Mrs. Rivera's husband, Dennis, 32.

Sheriff's homicide detectives who returned Valencia to California said their action followed a hearing before Canadian authorities earlier this week.

Valencia was arraigned on two counts of kidnaping. He is charged with abducting the woman and her child from their home in Valinda and traveling with them across the country and into Canada. After her return to California in May, Mrs. Rivera told deputies she had been in fear of her life during the 40-day, 3,000-mile trip.

Investigators said they believe the kidnaping was the result of Valinda's attempt to force a reconciliation with his girlfriend who is Mrs. Rivera's sister.

Oilmen deny gas shortages created

Claim companies are absorbing high costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Executives of some of the world's largest oil companies denied categorically today that they had created shortages of gasoline in an effort to force up prices.

The oilmen told two Senate subcommittees that most oil companies are supplying more gasoline than they did a year ago. And they said the companies are absorbing, at least temporarily, millions of dollars in increased costs because of fears the market would not bear sharply higher gasoline prices.

Frank Zarb, Federal Energy Administration administrator, testified Wednesday that he had seen nothing to indicate a general shortage or that oil companies were trying to force up prices.

Representatives of seven oil companies were called before the subcommittees headed by Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to explain why average gasoline prices were increased by three cents a gallon at the start of the Fourth of July holiday.

Some members of Congress, including Jackson and Stevenson, have alleged the oil companies lowered gasoline production earlier this year so that prices could be raised just as the summer vacation season was starting.

The response of Annon M. Card, senior vice president of Texaco Inc., was typical:

"When irresponsible charges are made against the petroleum industry — when the industry cannot carry out its functions efficiently and profitably because of a counterproductive mass of government regulations and controls — it is really the American consumer who is being hurt."

Also testifying were executives of Shell, Amoco, Mobil, Exxon, Chevron and Gulf.

Zarb told the panels that gasoline refining dropped in May and June for a variety of reasons, including unforeseen operating problems.

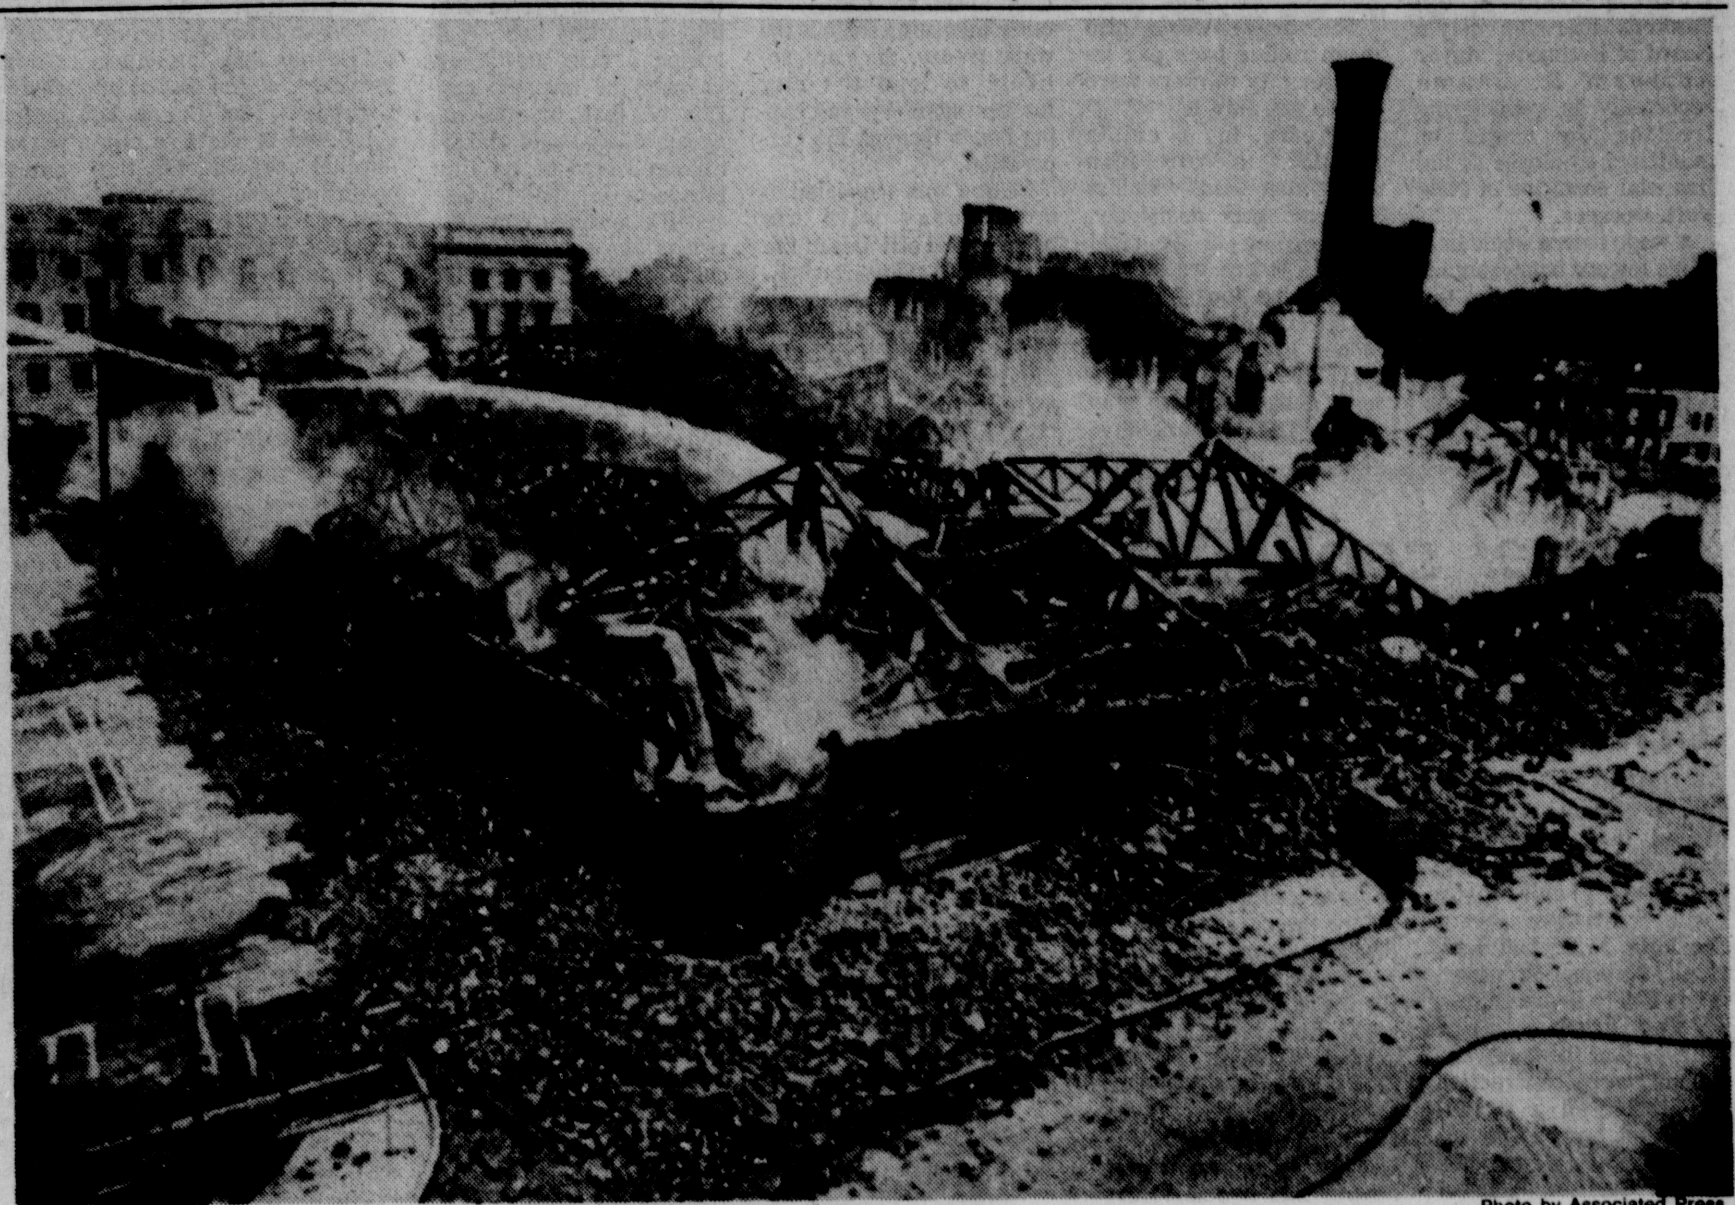

He also urged Congress again to accept President Ford's energy plan that is aimed at forcing fuel conservation by raising prices.

"The responsibility for what is happening to consumers today and what will happen to them to an even greater degree in the months ahead rests with the Congress," Zarb said. He contended there is no way for the United States to reduce reliance on oil imports without raising prices.

The energy administrator, under questioning by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said the gasoline prices could rise another two to five cents by Labor Day. But a spokesman for Zarb said later that what Zarb meant was that the oil companies have legal authority to raise gasoline prices by two to five cents between late June and Labor Day.

Most of the larger companies used three cents of that figure just before July 4.

The Federal Energy Administration estimates that any price hike will be around two cents, which would raise the nation's average cost of the regular gasoline to a record 61.2 cents.

Asks for loan, robs Dial finance office

A lone gunman tied up two employees at Dial Finance, 724 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, answered a telephone call and robbed the place shortly after Wednesday noon, police reported.

A young woman employee said the man entered, asked for a loan and was giving her information for an application when he suddenly pulled a pistol and announced a holdup.

The robber then herded two men employees into a back room where he left them tied with electrical cords. With the young woman he returned to the front of the office where he allowed her to wait on a woman who had come in to make a $25 loan payment. Then he forced the victim back into the rear of the office where he took money from the safe and left.

The robber was described as a Negro, 19 to 20. He was 5 feet 10 weighing about 140 pounds with a thin build and features. He wore a small, narrow-brimmed hat, purple shirt and dark trousers.

Police were on their way to Dial when they received a call from the victims saying they had been robbed. A few moments before that call, an employe of another Pomona finance company had called police saying he thought Dial might be being robbed. He said that he had called Dial several times, received no answer and finally, when someone did answer, he was abruptly placed on hold.

Employees at Dial told police later that the robber had answered the telephone and placed the caller on hold before fleeing.

Testimony in 18-week Gurney trial is over

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — After 18 weeks, testimony in the influence peddling trial of former Sen. Edward Gurney and three others ended today as the government announced in a surprise move it would have no rebuttal witnesses.

U.S. District Court Judge Ben Krentzman dismissed the 12-member jury and four alternates for the weekend telling them to bring their suitcases with enough clothes for a week when they return to the federal courthouse Tuesday at 10 a.m. when final arguments will begin.

Krentzman said the jury would be sequestered for the remainder of the trial.

There were indications that the government had summoned nine rebuttal witnesses.

However, after 15 minutes of secret bench conferences, government attorneys announced they were resting their case. It was not known why prosecutors decided to forgo rebuttal.

Nation's output slips fractionally; good sign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that the nation's economic output slipped fractionally over the second three months of this year, indicating the economy has stabilized after the longest and deepest recession since World War II.

The Commerce Department said the volume of the Gross National Product, which is the nation's total production of goods and services, dropped during the quarter by an amount which when projected over an entire year would equal three-tenths of one per cent.

It was the sixth straight quarterly decline in volume of Gross National Product, or GNP. But it was the smallest of the six and compared to a decline at an annual rate of 11.4 per cent in the first three months of the year.

Over-all, total economic output has declined 7.8 per cent since the start of the recession.

The Commerce Department also reported that the inflation rate fell to an annual rate of 5.1 per cent, the lowest since the 4.1 per cent rate during the final three months of 1972.

Inflation as measured in the GNP accounts, which covers a broader range of goods and services than are included in the more familiar Consumer Price Index, was 10.3 per cent for all of 1974 and 8.4 per cent at an annual rate in the first quarter.

The reduced inflation rate, combined with virtually stable output, resulted in the first advance in nearly two years in the per capita after-tax income of Americans after adjustment of the erosion of inflation.

Per capita real disposable income advanced $133 during the quarter to $2,908. That figure had not increased since reaching $2,952 in the third quarter of 1973. The result of the increase was that Americans saved an estimated 10.6 per cent of their after-tax income, most since an identical rate in the second quarter of 1946.

The GNP report showed that a major factor in the increase in after-tax income was the tax benefits and special Social Security payments during the quarter.

Disposable personal income increased $63.3 billion at an annual rate, with the combined tax cuts, rebates and Social Security payments accounting for $42.2 billion of that total.

Personal savings provide the basic pool of money for investment in expansion of productive capacity resulting in new jobs. Increase in personal savings also provide a base for stepped-up consumer demand in the months ahead.

The performance of the GNP accounts had been anticipated by administration economists who had been watching the month-by-month figures on consumer spending, reduction of business inventories and industrial output. The small negative decline in the volume of output, combined with other statistics, indicates the economy was still declining early in the quarter but rallied modestly at the end.

Soviets up oil prices to East European allies

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Soviet Union increased the price of oil it exported to its East European allies 120 to 150 per cent last year, according to information received in recent weeks by West European governments.

Officials say the increase appears to be straining the economies of Moscow's Communist customers. They said such countries as Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia are not as well equipped as the Western oil importers to absorb the shock of the increased fuel costs.

"The Soviets are acting like good capitalists," one diplomat observed. "They have bumped up their oil prices to take advantage of world market conditions. However, so far as charges to their allies are concerned, they have kept their prices below those of the Arab and other oil-producing countries."

Egypt puts peace onus on U.N. back

By The Associated Press
Egypt declared today the U.N. Security Council must adopt a new resolution speeding up Mideast peace moves before Cairo will agree to renew the mandate of the peacekeeping force in the Sinai. A high Israeli official said withdrawal of the troops could lead to a new war.

"A Security Council decision that Egypt considers a major step toward peace is an essential demand to extend the mandate," said President Anwar Sadat's spokesman, Tahseen Bashir Said.

"Egypt needs a decision that breaks the present stalemate and speeds up peace efforts," he said. The troop mandate expires July 24. Egypt announced Tuesday it opposes a new term for the force unless there is progress toward a settlement with Israel. U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Egypt appeared to want a Security Council resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories.

Israel's ambassador-designate to the United Nations, Haim Herzog, said if the U.N. force is withdrawn, "a vacuum is left, and by the very nature of things a vacuum never remains a vacuum for very long."

"Obviously, both sides would try to fill the vacuum, and there you have the makings of a confrontation with a possible conflagration ensuing," Herzog said in a radio interview in Tel Aviv.

The respected Israeli newspaper Haaretz also warned of a possible war. Other newspapers published editorial criticism of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who engineered the disengagement agreement that set up the emergency force and is now deep into negotiations for a second-stage agreement between Egypt and Israel.

The independent daily Maariv said Kissinger had promised Israel before it signed the agreement that the presence of the peace force "would not be dependent on the good will of Egypt."

At the United Nations in New York, U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan met with Waldheim late Wednesday to explore prospects for keeping the buffer force in the Sinai. The Security Council was to start closed meetings on the subject this afternoon.

Egyptian officials ruled out that Sadat would announce an eleventh hour extension on the eve of the expiration in his July 23 speech marking the 23rd anniversary of the Egyptian revolution.

Sex barrier upheld by judge in the crime of prostitution

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — A district court judge has ruled that the crime of prostitution can be committed only by women. He acquitted a man of the charge.

Frederick E. Doane Sr. of Brockton was acquitted Wednesday by Judge George Hurd after a 70-minute trial.

The 51-year-old defendant, married and the father of two children, was the first man known to have stood trial in Massachusetts on a charge of prostitution.

He was arrested May 26. An additional charge of soliciting was filed against him Wednesday shortly before the trial began. Doane also was acquitted of that charge.

Defense lawyer P.J. Placitelli of Brockton, who presented no witnesses, asked in his summation that his client be found innocent on the grounds that a male cannot commit prostitution.

He said the statute under which Doane was charged uses feminine pronouns.

The prosecutor, Brockton Police Sgt. Arthur Porciello, argued that the Oxford Dictionary definition of prostitution does not specify male or female.

The prosecution presented three witnesses.

Penny Etienne, 22, of Pembroke said she answered an advertisement in a Boston weekly newspaper for an assistant to a masseuse.

She said she went to Doane's apartment Dec. 13 in answer to the advertisement and was told by

Doane that she would have to give massages and "anything the customers want."

She said she saw no professional massage equipment in the apartment and witnessed Doane engage in sexual acts with a male customer.

Policewoman Ann Gurman, who made the arrest, testified that she answered the advertisement and met Doane. She said Doane told her he wanted her to give massages and engage in sexual acts, which she did not specify.

The third prosecution witness, Police Lt. John Bukunt, commander of the department's Bureau of Criminal Investigation, testified that Doane admitted to him that he engaged in various sexual acts for money.

Jury selection stalls in Joan Little trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jury selection in the Joan Little murder trial stalled today as her attorneys attempted to question prospective jurors about personal beliefs on racial issues.

One of the four jurors seated is black. The state has used three of its nine preemptory challenges to excuse other blacks. Defense attorneys have objected each time prosecutors have excused a potential black juror.

Wage freeze eyed for NYC workers

NEW YORK (AP) — Under pressure from bankers and the city's Board of Estimate, Mayor Abraham D. Beame reportedly is considering freezing the wages of municipal employees as the financial condition of New York worsens.

A wage freeze would be a move toward bolstering investor confidence in the Municipal Assistance Corp., a state-created agency forced on the city to help New York out of its fiscal morass but now reported to be in trouble itself.

The freeze would also mean rolling back pay increases city workers were due to get July 1.

"We're in a crisis situation," a corporation spokesman said. "Unless the city acts decisively, we're going to be right back to where we started in May and June."

The city must have the money by Aug. 22 to pay out $780 million in short-term obligations and stay afloat. The bankers have warned that unless Beame cuts spending and takes other measures such as the wage freeze, they are unlikely to lend the city further sums by purchasing bonds through the corporation.

Beame was scheduled to meet today with the bankers and officials of the corporation. Gov. Hugh L. Carey said he would not attend the meeting but would be "in close touch with the situation."

The corporation, dubbed "Big MAC" at its birth, was to convert $3 billion of the city's short-term debt into long-term debt. Following a brief initial expression of investor confidence last month, the agency still has not sold $50 million worth of its first billion-dollar bond issue and the possible cancellation of the second billion-dollar issue in August for lack of buyers has raised the spectre of municipal bankruptcy.

Sidney J. Frigand, the mayor's press secretary, declined comment on the wage freeze idea except to say "the subject did come up" at an evening meeting of Beame and the other members of the Board of Estimate. The Board is composed of the five city borough presidents, the controller and the president of the City Council.

Frigand said the mayor would reserve comment on the wage-freeze issue until after today's meeting.

The wage freeze was suggested by Felix G. Rohatyn, a director of Big MAC. Reportedly, when he first suggested the action to Beame, the mayor rejected it as impractical.

It was not immediately clear whether a halt in pay increases would be legal without legislative approval, nor was it clear how much money would be saved by such action.

Rohatyn said that if Beame did not follow the Big MAC directors' advice, he would appeal directly to Carey. But the governor has said he would not intervene, that "I'm not the mayor of New York."

Casual cockpit talk may have caused air crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casual cockpit talk that ranged from politics to used cars probably led to the fatal crash of an Eastern Airlines jet at Charlotte, N. C., last Sept. 11, the National Transportation Safety Board says.

"The safety board believes that these conversations were distracting and reflected a casual mood and lax cockpit atmosphere which continued through the remainder of the approach and which contributed to the accident," the board said Wednesday.

The conversations covered a 15-minute period before the crash and were discovered on the voice recorder recovered from the wreckage of the plane.

The crash killed 69 of the 82 persons aboard the DC-9-31 when it slammed into trees more than three miles from the end of the Douglas Municipal Airport runway and two survivors subsequently died of crash injuries.

The board's investigation showed that an altitude warning horn, signaling that the plane was 1,000 feet above the ground, sounded before the crash occurred but the pilots apparently disregarded it.

The safety board said the crash probably occurred because of the "flight crew's lack of altitude awareness at critical points during the approach due to poor cockpit discipline in that the crew did not follow prescribed procedures."

The board's said testimony from other pilots showed that the crew's disregard of the warning signal "may be indicative of the attitudes of many other pilots who regard the signal as 'more of a nuisance than a warning.'"

Bomb threat at Greek Theater

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A performance by the San Francisco ballet, featuring Russian stars Valery and Galina Panov, was interrupted when police cleared the Greek Theatre after receiving a telephoned bomb threat.

The entire audience of some 5,000 persons was evacuated from the outdoor facility Wednesday night for about 30 minutes while a police squad searched in vain for the reported bomb.

A police spokesman said the concert continued without incident after the search.

The board's investigation showed that an altitude warning horn, signaling that the plane was 1,000 feet above the ground, sounded before the crash occurred but the pilots apparently disregarded it.

The safety board said the crash probably occurred because of the "flight crew's lack of altitude awareness at critical points during the approach due to poor cockpit discipline in that the crew did not follow prescribed procedures."

Panama issue poses danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation aimed at scuttling negotiations to give Panama a bigger voice in Panama Canal affairs represents "an extremely dangerous political and legal precedent," a government analysis concludes.

The analysis was drawn up by government legal specialists after the House of Representatives voted by a 3-2 margin last month to deny funds to the State Department for negotiating the surrender of any U.S. rights in the Canal Zone.

Approval of the amendment, introduced by Rep. M. G. Snyder, R-Ky., came as the United States and Panama are in the final stages of negotiations designed to give Panama a greater role in the operation and defense of the Canal Zone. Eventually, Panama would be given full authority over the waterway.

The analysis, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, expresses "grave doubts" about the constitutionality of the amendment. It points out that the legislation attempts to restrict the President's constitutional powers to negotiate treaties with foreign nations.

The State Department plans a lobbying campaign in the Senate to block approval of a companion measure, but one official described the administration's prospects as "dubious."

The amendment is attached to a State Department appropriations bill and a presidential veto is considered unlikely.

As officials see it, the administration would be faced with three alternatives if the legislation were enacted: Ignore the restriction on constitutional grounds, put it to a court test, or tell Panama that political realities in the United States preclude a new canal treaty.

Although no determination has been made yet, officials believe the last alternative is the most feasible. They note that the mere funding of the negotiations doesn't have majority support in the Senate and that it's unlikely the requisite two-thirds majority approval could be obtained to ratify a treaty.

This would signal the failure of a negotiating process that has gone on intermittently for the past 11 years. Officials say a secret CIA report calls a new treaty essential on the ground that perpetuation of the current arrangement could lead to sabotage in the Canal Zone and the possibility that operations would be shut down.

At a news conference Tuesday in Minneapolis, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said guerrilla warfare could break out in the Canal Zone unless the treaty relationship is changed.

But congressional opponents of a new treaty, declaring that Panama is a small, weak country with a history of political instability, say the threat of a canal closure is even greater if the administration has its way.

RX FOR CURING CALIFORNIA'S MALPRACTICE CRISIS

Establish A Time Limit — We believe two years is a reasonable time limit.

Limit Legal Fees — A reasonable limit on legal fees should be established, making sure patients will get the major share of awards.

Prevent Duplicate Payments — Juries are entitled to receive full information, such as tax-free status of awards, so they can make a fair decision.

Establish Fair Limits — We need reasonable upper limits to establish fair awards.

Spread Out Payments — A system is needed for spreading out awards over an extended period to take care of the patient's continuing needs.

Provide Prompt Arbitration — Many cases can be handled without the cost of a court trial. We need legislation to make this possible.

Enforce Medical Standards — We need to expand the powers and scope of the Board of Medical Examiners so incompetent physicians can be weeded out quickly and effectively.

I support these reforms and urge you to see that they receive top priority.

A-bomb birth—30 years ago

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — On July 16, 1945, Joe McKibben sat in front of a console of instruments and gauges in a concrete bunker on the southern New Mexico desert.

At 5:29 a.m., he threw a switch and the atomic age was born.

Thirty years later, McKibben has no regrets.

"After Pearl Harbor we realized we were in a war and we had to get the job done," he said in an interview. "I have no regrets. Absolutely not."

On Aug. 6, 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced a similar nuclear device had been dropped on the Japanese city of Hiroshima, killing almost 74,000 persons. On Aug. 9, another, more destructive, atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, killing 260,000.

When the extent of the damage was learned, Raymond Schreiber, another scientist who worked on the so-called Manhattan Project, said: "One had a lot of feelings. But as far as feeling, 'Here were all these poor people getting killed,' I don't know that I had any feeling of that sort. At that time they were the enemy."

The same day, the Japanese government sued for peace and World War II was over. But the controversy over the use of nuclear power, a controversy that still rages today, was just beginning.

Truman said on the day of the bombing of Hiroshima that "atomic power could become a powerful and forceful influence towards the maintenance of world peace."

Three months later, Canada, England and the United States joined in calling for the creation of a United Nations agency to supervise and extend the peaceful application of atomic energy and guard against its use for destruction. The next year, the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission met for the first time.

And while peaceful uses

This was the blast's center area. Shacks in foreground were built from scraps of metal picked up from the ruins. The blast here killed 260,000 persons.

ATOMIC AGE BORN — On July 16, 1945, the first atomic explosion was set off on a southern New Mexico desert. These photos taken at the time show mushroom cloud, top, which rose 41,000 feet into the air and half-mile wide, 10-foot deep crater created by the blast.

Ford frets over CIA news leaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford feels there should be no news leaks about alleged plots to assassinate foreign leaders stemming from investigations of the Central Intelligence Agency, says White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

"This is a disorderly, irresponsible way of handling it," Nessen said Tuesday. "The way the facts are being dribbled out doesn't give a complete picture."

He said Ford has "very deep convictions on the improprieties of the leaks ... about handling things in an orderly fashion and about not besmirching the reputations of others with bits and pieces of information."

Nessen said Ford believes it is difficult to judge what other persons or presidents "did at other times and under other pressures. This is obviously an area where people's reputations are involved."

Nessen's statements were made at a daily news briefing when he was asked about recent news stories concerning the CIA investigation conducted by the Rockefeller Commission and one currently under way by a Senate committee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Asked if he thought the news media should not report such leaks, Nessen said he was "not criticizing, rebuking or warning the press. I'm simply reporting on how the President feels about handling this information in a fair and responsible manner."

were found for atomic power, so too, were new nuclear weapons developed.

In 1963, the United States and Russia signed the historic Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, and seven years later the same two nations signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

One of the potentials seen was using atomic energy to generate electricity. And in 1957, the first experimental commercial plant using nuclear power was opened at Shippingport, Pa.

Current estimates are that within a decade 25 percent of the nation's electrical energy will come from nuclear power. And the nuclear age has brought definite benefits to the medical community, particularly in cancer treatments.

Questions persist, however, about the safety of nuclear energy. Conservationists argue nuclear power plants are being built too quickly without enough consideration given to safety factors.

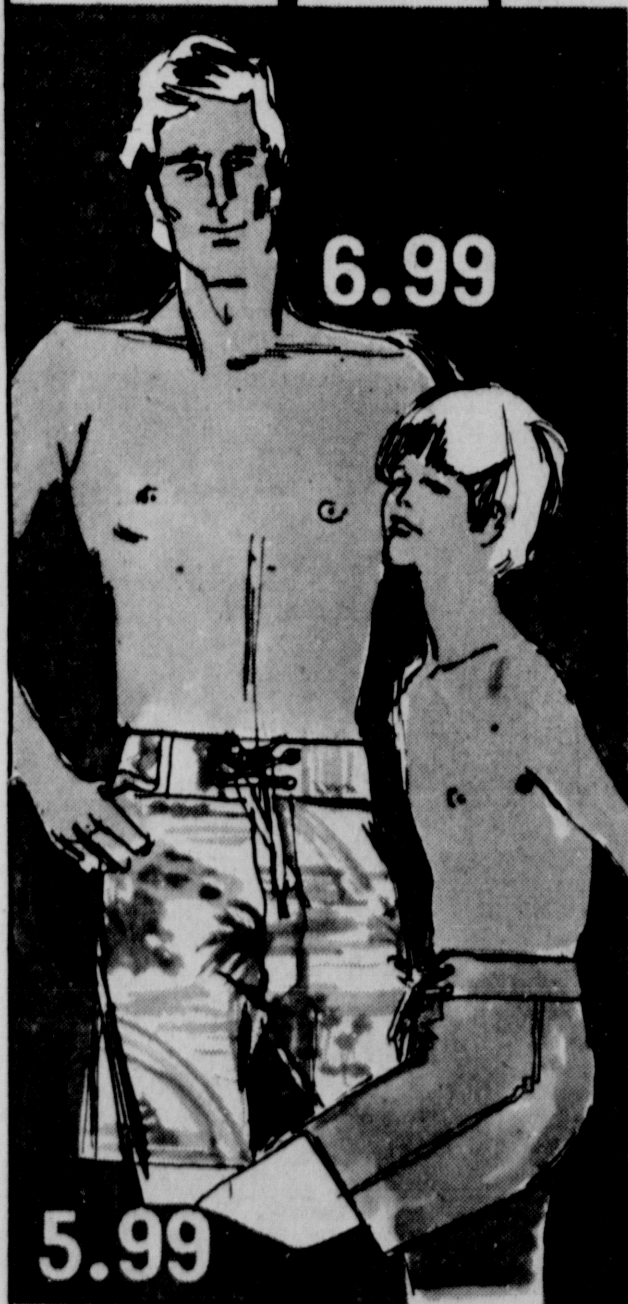

"We just have to accept science, we have to accept what we find in science, just as we accept the geography we live in," said McKibben.

In 1807 Robert Fulton's steamboat, the Clermont, made its critics eat crow by making the trip up the Hudson River from New York to Albany in 32 hours against the current.

Self rule: the Angola dilemma

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Portuguese African colony of Angola, scheduled to be free in four months, seems as unable to rule itself as Portugal herself does at this moment, and the military-leftist regime in Lisbon is facing some painfully difficult decisions.

When Portugal's dictatorship was overthrown last year, the successors plunged headlong into the business of cutting loose the centuries-old empire in Africa. Angola, twice the size of Texas and with 6.5 million mostly illiterate people, was ill prepared, especially since black guerrilla armies had been fighting not only the Portuguese but one another for 10 years or more.

Angola's civil war is beginning to make the prospect of elections in November a dim one. A formula for resolving the confused tribal and ideological differences among the black combatants, reached in Kenya in June, has broken down, and blood is being spilled at a frightful rate while thousands, both black and white, seek to flee, especially from the embattled area of the capital, Luanda.

Tens of thousands of Portuguese remain, many with deep roots, many native to African soil. If Lisbon wants to protect them, it will have to reassert militarily-backed colonial authority at least temporarily, which would be both expensive and distasteful. If it didn't protect those nationals, however, the impact at home would be a considerable political factor.

Meantime, the sudden arrival en masse of Portuguese Angolans in the mother country not only would be an economic problem at an inconvenient time but would add a new conservative political element frim to worry about.

There's an alphabet soup of black liberation movements battling to rule a colony potentially rich from the oil, iron ore, coffee and diamonds that heretofore enriched Portugal. The Lisbon regime is weighing the dispatch of reinforcements for the 24,000 Portuguese troops still in Angola. What shall the troops be told by a Lisbon army regime closely allied with a pro-Soviet Communist party?

One of the embattled Angolan factions is the pro-Soviet MPLA, or Popular Movement for Liberation of Angola. Does Lisbon support it against Holden Roberto, a hero of the anti-colonial movement in Africa, and his FNLA, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, which has some Chinese support? Or does it try to build up the moderate UNITA, or United Front for the Total Liberation of Angola, to which whites have been flocking in hopes of salvation?

No matter what they do, the Lisbon leaders will tread on toes they'd rather leave unbruised. Worse luck, the Angola situation makes heavy demands on their attention. At this moment, they probably would rather concentrate all their attention on the home front, where the rising Socialists and the spiritually strong Roman Catholic church gives them plenty to think about.

THIS IS THE PLACE — It's a 217-year-old house which Arnold Skromme is dismantling for a move to Moline, Ill.

Skromme and his wife are taking it piece-by-piece to Illinois on a freight car to go with their furniture.

House matches 18th century furniture

ROCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — For 20 years, Arnold Skromme and his wife collected 18th Century furniture. Now, they have found a colonial house to match and plan to ship it home to Illinois piece by piece.

Skromme has been dismantling the 217-year-old, six-room frame house for the past two weeks and soon will pack the boards, beams, split-board lathing and even original "rose head" nails into a freight car bound for Moline, Ill.

"This is a home for the rest of our lives. It will be the last we'll ever build," the 58-year-old agricultural engineer for John Deere Co. said Tuesday.

He estimated that the project will cost "between $50,000 and $100,000, at least."

Along with six college students, his wife, a son and a neighbor from Moline, Skromme has marked and numbered every disassembled piece of the house.

According to state records, the house was built in 1758. It has never had electricity, water or plumbing. It relies on six fire places converging into a single chimney for heat.

No one has lived in it regularly since 1950.

"We've been collecting 18th Century furniture and now it's all in a modern ranch-style house and it doesn't fit at all. We wanted to get a house for our furniture," Skromme said.

He said he had looked at more than 50 old houses from eastern Pennsylvania to northern New England.

Last August, he came upon the Dame homestead, as the house here is known. He bought it for an undisclosed price.

Although a bit disappointed that some of the beams of the unpainted, weather-beaten house appeared to be in worse shape than expected, Skromme said he was increasingly amazed at the history surrounding the structure.

Local historians say the house was built by Jabez Dame in 1758 on land bought by his father two years earlier. Twice it was attacked by Indians and once suffered fire damage. Except from 1854 to 1866, the 27-by-37-foot house was continually owned by the Dame family until Eldredge Dame agreed to sell to Skromme.

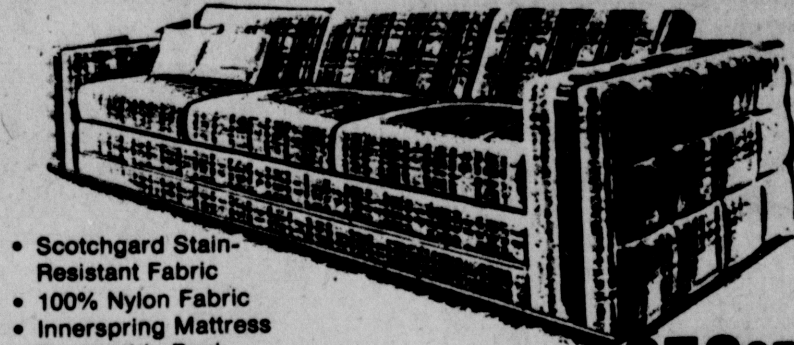

Skromme said that when the project is finished, only a granite foundation, some timber used in a renovation project in 1842 and the six-fireplace chimney will remain in New Hampshire.

Determined to take only the original parts of the house — "1758 and not a year later!" — he said he plans to build a new chimney on land in Moline and that pieces of wood that cannot be reassembled will be cut fresh and patterned after the 18th Century style.

"We've got 18th Century furniture."

Competition was keen among more than 60 participants in the Montclair Recreation Department's skateboard tournament but these youngsters took it all in stride. From left, Ricky Miller, 14, of Montclair does a balancing game with arms extended. Montclair High freshman Ken Miller slopes low as he speeds down the walkway in the slalom test. Danny Kefalas demonstrates perfect balance in a handstand that captured first place honors in hotdogging for him. Tanis North, 17 and a Valley View High School senior, twirls her skateboard while 12-year-old Bobby Bryant of Ontario tilts his in the hotdogging competition. Approximately 150 West End residents witnessed the skateboard acrobatics.

Skateboard acts draw the crowds

Nearly 200 participants and spectators gathered at Alma Hofman Park in Montclair to witness the skills and acrobatics in the art of skateboarding Wednesday.

The competition was divided into the slalom which is a speed exercise and hotdogging which tests agility and performance skills. More than 60 youngsters took part in the tournament sponsored by the Montclair Recreation Department.

The slalom was divided into three age groups, 10 years and under, 11 to 14 years old and 15 to 18. The hotdogging was an event for all ages.

The slalom winners in the 10 and under category were Bob Lazonne of Montclair, first with a timing of 17 seconds flat; Glen Stecker, second; and Doug Kirby, third. Chuck Gendry of Upland took the honors in the 11 to 14 year old division with a speed of 13 and two-tenths seconds. Kirk Van Tassel was second and Jerrold Cook came in third.

Fourteen seconds was the winning time for Danny Kefalas of Ontario in the older group. Second place winner was Dennis Taccogna and Jim Leis took third place honors.

Kefalas, a junior at Chaffey High School, also took first place in the hotdogging and Van Tassel came in second again. Jim Leis was the third place winner.

Participants were from Montclair, Ontario and Upland.

Hint L.A. firemen will OK contract

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Tentative agreement has been reported that would give Los Angeles city firemen a 10.66 per cent increase in salary plus additional fringe benefits.

The proposed contract reached Tuesday between city officials and representatives of the United Fire Fighters Union must be ratified by union members and the City Council.

Three injured in brake mishap

A La Verne woman and two visitors were injured in Claremont Wednesday morning when the car they were in lost its brakes on steep Mountain Avenue, ran off the road and hit a wall and a tree west of San Andres Way.

The driver, Thelma O. Roberts, 59,

2718 Bonita Ave., suffered a cerebral concussion and was reported in good condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital. One of her passengers, Keith C. Borrette, 66, Jessup, Ia., was in fair condition. He had a dislocated shoulder and a broken nose. The third passenger, Roberta Borrette, 61, was slightly injured and was released after treatment.

Police reported that the car was southbound down the hill when it went out of control, left the road and hit a wall, sprinkler system, underground television cable, shrubbery and mail box before slamming into the tree.

Claremont tax override reflected

Board adopts publication budget

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont school board Wednesday night at a special meeting adopted a publication budget reflecting an 87-cent-per-$100 assessed valuation tax hike over the 1974-75 tax rate. Voters in March approved a $1 tax override.

The tax rate including the bond interest and redemption fund might go from $5.87 to $6.74 if predictions on income and expenditures hold true.

Business Manager Charles Abbott explained that since the board adopted the tentative budget in mid-June, salaries have been settled for the coming school year for classified employees, certificated support service employees, and administration.

He said that an additional $60,000 has been placed in a teachers salary contingency fund to bring up to $360,180 the amount which the board has offered to teachers for the coming year. That amount represents about 6 per cent for salaries and fringe benefits or a combination of the two.

Claremont teachers have not yet agreed on any salary increase for next year.

Abbott explained that the budget anticipates deficit financing in the amount of $146,704, which would bring budgeted reserves down to $980,935.

Abbott further explained that the reserves "may appear high at this time," but have been established as part of a three-year plan with the anticipation that they will be depleted during the 1977-78 school year, and the board will have to look toward program cuts.

He told the board that the staff has developed the publication budget under "some distinct handicaps" which may require additional changes before the final budget is adopted in August.

The tentative budget which the board approved in mid-June was returned corrected by the county only Monday after the staff had prepared the publication budget.

Abbott said that new state law may limit the district as to its adult education program and participation in the Baldy, View Regional Occupational Program.

from the state on how the district might apply for part of a $5 million fund set aside for expansion of the adult program on an application basis.

He stressed that a 5 per cent growth limit would hold the district to 285 average daily attendance although the staff has budgeted for 350 ADA.

He also explained that the budget had been decreased to reflect a 5 per cent growth limit placed on the ROP program.

S.B. County holds tax line

San Bernardino County supervisors held the property tax line at $3 per $100 assessed valuation this week as they adopted a $205 million expenditure budget.

The adoption followed a six month study in which supervisors whacked $25 million from departmental requests. Last year's budget was $187 million.

"We started to cut and then asked the department chairmen to reduce the budget by another five per cent," said Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino.

"Some chairmen, however, didn't cooperate until the final minute when they saw we meant business and then they cooperated."

But to reach the bare minimum, supervisors had to allocate use of $2 million in federal revenue sharing funds for selected one-time expenses within the general fund; provide a savings of $1 million through employees taking days off without pay; and institute a managed salary savings of $1 million resulting from such administrative procedures as not rehiring to fill existing positions as they become vacant. This will involve deletion of 50 positions throughout the county.

Townsend said the board sought to hold the tax line since residents are burdened enough with taxes. "But we discovered we couldn't provide the needed services without increasing the tax rate without diverting some federal revenue sharing funds."

"I don't think we should get to the point where lack of funds would cripple the function of any public entity."

CHP issues only two citations in slowdown

Highway patrolmen continued their local slowdown Wednesday by issuing only two traffic citations.

This brought the total number of citations since the protest began Friday midnight to 17. This compares to a projected 497 citations during a similar period.

Officers, however, continued their enforcement against drinking drivers by arresting eight suspects

We have achieved this by still keeping within our present tax rate."

Regarding days off without pay, Townsend said this will be done on a voluntary basis until Nov. 1 when a review is made. If adequate days have been taken off, this will continue on a voluntary basis.

"Some employees indicated they would take days off to help the county over this financial hump," he added. "The employees realize the county is facing financial problems. This is a healthy attitude."

Wednesday. This brought the total since Friday to 30.

This is slightly higher than the 29 such arrests projected on a similar period, said Lt. Kenneth Warren, acting area commander.

Officers are protesting Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. limiting their pay raises to only 10 per cent after the state personnel board had previously approved a 17 per cent hike.

Space detente hopeful symbol

For a short while at least the world can pause from its earthbound troubles and let its attention soar skyward.

The Apollo-Soyuz flight will not have quite the heart-stopping drama of the first moon landing. The project did not require much new equipment and it is not expected to yield significant scientific results. But it does demonstrate that the world's rival super-powers can collaborate in some fields. If successful, it should help warm the air of detente.

This does not mean that after the American and Russian spacemen shake hands 140 miles over the earth, the way is automatically open to the joint exploration of space. Nor that the Russians will abandon their expansionist drive in the Middle East, Western Europe, and Asia. Nor that the Kremlin will suddenly allow political and intellectual freedom at home. Nor that it will stop looking for the collapse of the capitalist system.

The joint space mission serves the Russians well. It has gained them exposure to American space facilities and technology. And, while the object of the flight is to test an universal docking system that can be used in space rescues, the superiority of American technology places the United States in a better position to effect such rescues.

Nonetheless, Apollo-Soyuz is good for America, too. The rationale of detente is that in the nuclear age a policy of cooperation and accommodation better promotes peace than one of hostile confrontation. It is wiser to engage the Russians constructively on the international scene than to fight them. It is wiser to encourage a gradual evolution of their authoritarian system through the flow of people and ideas across borders than to treat them like pariahs. Isolating a country only invites aggressiveness; involving it invites responsibility.

Hence, while Americans will continue to abhor the despotism of the Soviet regime and must remain vigilant against Moscow's aggressiveness — as writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn eloquently warns — they can sensibly support detente. They can welcome the efforts to restrain the nuclear arms race. They can also sell grain to the Soviet Union, seeking assurances from their government that they will not be bilked in the process. And they can cooperate in scientific endeavors.

Apollo-Soyuz yielded much cooperation in the long five years the project has been under way. Each side has to accommodate to the other in scheduling events in the flight, releasing information to the public and designing safety equipment. The Russians were not totally open in showing the Americans their space facilities but they disclosed more than before. And for the first time a world audience will see a Russian space launch.

In short, the scientific importance of the flight should not be overestimated. But, as a symbol of what can be accomplished when men work together, it holds out great potential — both in space and on earth.

Fire in buildings

Some of those who were trapped by fire high in a New York skyscraper, must have recalled that nature imitates art, instead of the other way around. Recalling an episode from a popular film that depicts such a situation, they took action which apparently helped to save their lives.

The men in the group of about 50 unable to escape to the skyscraper's roof removed their shirts, soaked them with water, and plugged air-conditioning ducts and ventilators. That kept out noxious smoke and, combined with bashing out huge windows, kept the air more or less breathable until firemen arrived.

The terrifying experience of being trapped so many stories above the street could only occur in a big city environment. Something of the sort might take place in almost any sizeable town, however. That film, "The Towering Inferno," and real-life incidents such as the recent one in New York underscore the special danger of fire in high-rise buildings. Thus alerted, fire-fighting agencies throughout the nation should undertake a reassessment and recommend measures to minimize this peril in their communities.

U.S. should ban guns

It is my firm belief that if all gun manufacturers were to close down tomorrow our country would be a much better and safer place to live.

The powerful gun lobby headed by the National Rifle Association is nothing but a mouthpiece for the major gun manufacturers. They would have us believe our country isn't safe until every citizen is armed to the teeth.

One only has to look at the statistics to realize that the average citizen of this country has no business owning a gun. How many times do you hear of a homeowner shooting a burglar in his home? I rarely read of such incidents happening. On the other hand, how many times do we read where a child is wounded or killed playing with a gun? How many times do we read where someone is shot while cleaning their weapon? How many times do we read where a person shot a neighbor or relative "thinking" they were an intruder?

The pro-gun people always bring up the old chestnut "well automobiles kill over 50,000 people a year so we should ban them also." I will grant you a lot of people are killed by autos and tire irons and knives. But, all of these items are essential in our daily routine. I would hardly classify a gun as an essential part of our daily lives.

Lets face it, a gun has only one real purpose and that is to kill. I just hope I live long enough to see the day where our country rids itself of these horrible instruments of death.

Sincerely, Gary Meese, Claremont.

Booths available at Fiesta

Editor: Aug. 17 is just 30-plus days away and I am surprised at the number of people who still have not gotten the word about a most important event that is to take place on that date, namely, the Rancho San Jose Fiesta, which is going to celebrate both the Centennial of Pomona and the Bicentennial of our country.

The Fiesta Committee has been working hard for the past several months publicizing this event and making other necessary preparations, and now as we are approaching the 17, people are finding out about the Fiesta and they are asking if it is possible to have a booth.

The answer is a resounding yes! That's what the fiesta is all about — it's a "people" project that welcomes the participation of community and service groups as booth operators, exhibitors or entertainers.

An event such as this involving six cities is unprecedented in this valley and we invite the widest possible public participation. We appreciate the Progress Bulletin's help in getting the word to the public.

Very truly yours, George A. V. Dunning, Acting Chairman, Rancho San Jose Fiesta Committee

Gun talk at the White House

WASHINGTON — President Ford called Republican leaders behind closed White House doors the other day to discuss what to do about the soaring crime rate. The discussion quickly centered on gun control.

"The gun control issue," warned Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., "is the lightning rod which buzzes the voters."

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggested that the issue should be separated from the main crime-control legislation. "Can't gun control be in a separate bill?" he asked. "Yes," agreed Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt. "Unless separated we'll have trouble with both bills."

"Isn't gun control a bit untimely?" asked Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn. "Jim," said the President firmly, "the statistics of gun crimes are absolutely shocking. This zeroes in on the area of greatest threat."

"What about creating federal statutes covering crimes with firearms?" suggested House Republican leader John Rhodes.

"That would only add to the federal case load," objected Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich.

"We don't ask for the registration of the gun or the gun owner," explained the President. But he wanted to curb the sale of cheap "Saturday night specials," which street criminals carry.

These handguns have become "a major factor," said the President, "in larger crime areas."

"I'm for banning Saturday night specials," agreed Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., "but only providing we get the right definition and limitations of the term, 'Saturday night special.' The size of the gun, yes. The price of the gun, no."

The real problem, he grumbled, was the failure of local law enforcement. "There are a million illegally possessed guns in New York City," he said, "and the mayor has the nerve to blame the federal government. There is a failure of local enforcement of law on licensed dealers."

The confidential White House minutes show that President Ford also favors compensating crime victims.

"I've seen the data from 12 states which have it," he said. "It has not run wild. It's under control."

"What about the greatest flaw of all — lenient judges?" broke in Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, a former Pennsylvania prosecutor. "I used to convict them in the front room, then the defense counsel and the judge would spring them in the back room."

"We are proposing some strict standards for sentencing by judges," said Atty. Gen. Edward Levi.

The President agreed that judges were letting hardened criminals loose in the streets. "An abnormal percentage of crime," he said, "is committed by a relatively small number of criminals."

"I think the Board of Judges ought to do something about 'judge shopping,'" Scott added, referring to the practice of some defense counsel to seek the most lenient judges for their cases. "It's a dreadful scandal."

"We've had a very large increase in crime," the President repeated. He called for a "tough program to protect the victim and to promote domestic tranquility."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The House International Relations Policy subcommittee is putting together hearings under chairman Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., on whether renewed U.S. military aid to Turkey should depend on an end to Turkish opium growing. . . . During a shortage of the life-sustaining kidney and heart drug heparin last fall, one firm began charging 400 per cent more than the preshortage prices. The drugmaker, North American Pharmaceutical, Dearborn, Mich., told us it had to sell high because its foreign suppliers had skyrocketed prices.

Chairman Richard Holmquist of the Federal Renegotiation Board has taken a strange attitude toward his job of eliminating excess profits on government contracts. In draft testimony, he said "there is nothing wrong with 'excessive profits' if a company is efficient, innovative or has a proper, 'market position.'"

When he queried Holmquist, he said he has reconsidered and now takes a stronger position toward limiting profits.

The conservative newspaper Human Events has moaned that its financial woes are due, among other things, to "the proliferation of conservative direct mail operations." It so happens that Human Events is a zealous peddler of its own mailing list. . . . The coin collecting world is in an uproar over our story that Senate and House Banking committees have pilfered 14 experimental aluminum pennies sent them for study by the U.S. Mint. The coins' future worth may be $1.4 million. A reader, Lorenzo Lowe, of Arlington, Va., suggests the light-fingered legislators be thwarted by a minting of bushels of the pennies and thus bringing their value down to $5 or $10.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The destroyer escort Holt steamed to the rescue of the merchant ship Mayaguez with a jerryrigged five-inch gun. The gun had failed, a Navy spokesman acknowledged to us, because of a missing part. But he insisted it had been rigged to an alternate power source and would have fired adequately. . . . Actually, the Mayaguez was the eighth U.S. commercial vessel seized on the high seas this year, according to a State Department count. The other seven were tuna fishing boats, which Ecuadorian gunboats took into custody.

Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., has urged President Ford to veto the energy legislation that is developing in the Senate. "If we can't sustain a veto," he told the President at the White House, "Congress will take all your petroleum powers away."

House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., sharply attacked President Ford for raising the import tax on oil. Apparently, this surprised the President who had been advised by Rep. Herman Schneebeli, R-Pa., according to the confidential transcript, that "Al Ullman will continue to try to help in my opinion."

Stanley Sporkin, the Securities and Exchange Commission's tough enforcement chief, is not overly dismayed by the illegal political contributions made by a few corporations. While insisting that illegal practices be stamped out, he has told associates that far more corporations refused to make improper payments and that most business leaders have high integrity.

FEEDING THE REFUGEES: A White House inquiry about the Agriculture Department's ability to feed the incoming Vietnamese refugees has produced a typical bureaucratic response.

A memo, intended for official eyes only, explains the refugees couldn't receive food stamps because the rules stipulate that recipients must be family units living in households. So the refugees, homeless by definition, couldn't qualify.

The memo goes on to outline other limitations, never mentioning that the Agriculture Department has plenty of surplus dairy products that could be used to feed the hungry refugees.

Those who have reached the United States, meanwhile, have received a cool reception. For instance, Rep. Bob Sikes, D-Fla., who has a hand on the military purse-strings in Congress, raised a howl with the Pentagon for dumping refugees at Eglin Air Force Base in his Florida panhandle district.

Spikes finally got assurances that Eglin wouldn't get too many refugees and that those who landed wouldn't stay too long. The irony is that Sikes consistently supported the Vietnam War. In his view, apparently, the Vietnamese are fine people, but he wouldn't want to live next door to them.

President Ford, meanwhile, has been pushing Congress to approve $327 million in humanitarian aid. But it will take more than money to make a home for refugees in the United States.

The State Supreme Court has ruled that alphabetical listing of candidates names on ballots would be illegal. And a good thing, too! Unabashed by their ability to pollute the world and its immediate environs with radioactive wastes, some scientific minded individuals are now even pointing out that it is well within the realm of possibility to live in this troubled world and at the same time continue to enjoy our pollution creating radioactive inventions. One of these scientific masterminds even went so far recently as to advance this suggestion for living with the problem.

"Why not," he asks, "utilize one of the many God given advantages with which we have been so bountifully blessed? Why not fire our radioactive wastes into outer space — or at least carry them out by space shuttle-ship and dump them?"

Missile pact has loophole

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — We may have negotiated ourselves into a dangerous corner in our missile agreements with the Soviet Union.

Melvin Laird, former Defense secretary and one of President Ford's closest intimates, says the Russians are violating the strategic arms limits. Not so, say Mr. Ford and present Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

So far as this reporter can determine, all three men are correct. Technically, the Soviet Union may not be violating the treaty. Actually it is engaged in a deliberate flouting of the understandings.

But it's our own fault. We forget, in our dealing with the Russians, the common rules of caution known by any old-fashioned horse trader. We have neglected to cross each "t" and dot each "i". And that has been our undoing.

The pact, as Laird accurately points out, severely limits improvements in antiballistic missile systems. The testing of ABM radar is prohibited. But by some slipup the papers we signed do not prohibit the development and testing of other radar that just might happen to be useful for superior ABM systems. Under this loophole the Russians have tested ABM radar under another name.

As American officials read the treaty, there was to be a limit on the total or over-all increase in the size of the larger missiles. As the Russians read the pact, the increase is allowed in each dimension of each missile, which enables Moscow to up the overall size of their weapons by 50 per cent instead of the 15 per cent we thought we had agreed to.

This is not a mere honest difference of opinion. The American negotiators wanted strict definitions. The Soviet Union refused. This, of course, should have alerted careful men that the Russians had something in mind. But it did not alert Secretary of State Kissinger. He agreed to the loose wording. And then we went further and took a course of action that can only be described as insane.

That is, after the negotiations had failed to get Russian agreement on preciseness, we unilaterally announced our own understanding of what had been agreed to, thus seemingly binding the United States to a strict interpretation of the arrangement while leaving the Russians free to interpret in any way which best suits their purposes.

Technically, of course, since the Russians are building missiles much larger than our reading of what the pact permits, the United States could do the same. Except that the hands of the top men in our government are so tied by our interpretations, corrective action may be psychologically impossible.

Now the Russian leaders are cautious men. They have, in the course of history, taken few chances. That went for Stalin and for Khrushchev, and goes now for Brezhnev. They probe carefully. If there's no reaction, or if the reaction is weak, they exploit the opening. If the reaction is strong, they withdraw.

Russian probing has a long history — the Berlin blockade, the emplacement of missiles in Cuba, the taking of the Pueblo by the North Koreans, the cautious buildup of the North Vietnamese with offensive equipment after the peace treaty. Each successful probe was followed by action. Each blocked probe was followed by a Russian backoff. The signs are that this is another probe.

Moscow also watches for other signs of weakness. Take, for example, the report that Kissinger had advised Mr. Ford not to meet with Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the great Soviet dissident writer, out of fear that such a meeting would disturb the Russians and weaken detente. If precedent is any guide, this will be interpreted in Moscow as a sign of weakness, and lead to another probe to test our will.

Some advice on raising puppies

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are about to embark on raising another puppy. It has been 18 years. The last time was kind of a nightmare. We had lots of nice china knickknacks and other good things broken by a big country puppy. The one we are planning to buy now is even larger, which might make things worse. I cannot stand the thought. How can we prevent this catastrophe? We'd like to raise the puppy inside with us, feeling this makes the puppy a closer part of the family. How can we hold on to our home and raise a puppy, too? —M.Y.

DEAR M.Y.: You're right: Fragile knickknacks and a large country puppy are an incompatible combination. It's unfair to both the puppy and the knickknacks to have them in the same place at the same time. That's the key to solving the problem — don't. It's normal behavior for a puppy to explore, to sniff, to mouth, to taste. It's also true for a puppy that the larger the breed, the clumsier. The answer, then, is to avoid situations where a puppy is expected to behave in other than a normal fashion.

Have a puppy playtime (and enough other time to satisfy its wants and yours) indoors in rooms that are reasonably puppy proof. If there simply is not any room, then those knickknacks, for a few months at least, should be relegated to safer — inaccessible — positions so that the puppy can play without constantly encountering anxiety — producing situations. Consider too, that small knickknacks are not the only items accessible to damage by a large clumsy puppy. Large lamps and other breakable furniture could all qualify as "endangered species," particularly during his puppyhood period.

If you simply haven't the extra room indoors nor any room outdoors, or if you are unwilling to readjust your home environment for the period, perhaps a large breed of dog is not really what you want. In the long run you might actually be much happier with a small breed puppy whose clumsiness would be less hazardous to home and furniture.

DEAR S.R.: Yes.

He bites snake with venom

Dear Ann Landers: Somebody in this group is crazy and I am asking your opinion. Which one is it?

Recently we were visiting a campsite. Mr. B discovered a snake under a board and ran away yelling language that is unprintable. Mr. T caught the snake (non-poisonous) and chased Mr. B for two country miles "just to scare him a little."

Mr. C watched all the action and Mr. T, who was holding the snake at arm's length, was laughing his head off!

Then Mr. C walked up to Mr. T and said, "I have always been a follower of the Golden Rule. 'Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you.' Snakes bite people and I believe in getting even!"

With that, Mr. C bit the snake and I got sick to my stomach. Who is crazy? — Jackson, Miss.

I took a part-time job and saved $90 for that jerk's birthday gift. When he hands me something that costs $11 — especially after lying about the money in his wallet — I feel that he is being selfish and unfair. Any advice? — Let Down Plenty

Dear L.D. Plenty: The next time The Last of the Big Spenders has a birthday show up with an $11 cake and holler, "Surprise!"

Dear Ann Landers: May I be you today? I want to give some advice to all the widows in the world who are longing to remarry.

When my husband died I was sure my life was finished. We had a beautiful marriage and I was certain I could never look at another man. Several months later the loneliness set in. I began to accept invitations from interesting bachelors and widowers. One day a very attractive man asked me to marry him. I said yes.

Here are the questions I wish I had asked myself:

1. Does the man have children?
2. How do THEY feel about his remarrying?

Overactive thyroid slowed

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 36 and have a goiter about the size of a small orange. I have had it since I was 20. Two years ago tests showed it was overactive, about as high as it could go. I was sent to a specialist, and he put me on propylthiouracil. I was taking six pills a day for awhile, but now I'm down to one pill a day.

The specialist said I shouldn't take these pills longer than 12 to 18 months as they cause some kind of anemia. My doctor doesn't think it should matter if I do. I have been taking the medicine for 20 months now.

I had tests taken last April and in December, and they both showed that my thyroid function is back to normal, and my doctor said I'm to stay on one pill a day. I am wondering if you think these pills are harmful to take for that length of time. Do these pills help to put on weight?

DEAR READER — You can have a goiter with normal thyroid function, low thyroid or overactive thyroid states.

The medicine you used is effective in slowing down an overactive thyroid, and the normal tests you have had over a period of time show that it works.

When a person with an overactive thyroid returns to normal function, there is often a tendency to gain weight, not from the medicine directly, but because the medicine cured the thyroid problem.

Patients with overactive thyroid states tend to eat a lot and not gain weight. That would be wonderful if it were not for all the other problems that go with the disease. When the thyroid function returns to normal the patient tends to follow the old eating habits, and they can add weight in a hurry.

Propylthiouracil may affect the production of white blood cells. The same is true of other pills used to treat overactive thyroids. The patient should be tested regularly to be sure the white cells formation is within normal limits. If it is too depressed the patient may be susceptible to serious infections.

Jacoby's bridge

Mom-Pop bidding made easy

By Oswald & James Jacoby
North's raise to two spades is the correct bid with his hand. It is worth eight points in support of spades.

South has 13 high-card points and two doubletons so his hand counts as 15. However, he should revalue his hand upward because an immediate raise allows you to add one point for your fifth trump and two for each additional one. Thus, his hand has become an 18 pointer and he might well jump right to the spade game.

Why does he only rebid to three spades? Because he and his partner were playing standard American in which the single raise might be made with as little as six supporting points.

In their system the simple rebid to three spades said, "Partner, I really should bid game, but am giving you leeway in case you raised me to two with almost nothing."

Hence, North goes on to four.

3. Do the children get along with one another or are they still fighting about their mother's estate?

4. What about YOUR children? Does the gentleman want to include them in HIS family circle?

5. When decisions are made will he consult you or does he go to his children?

6. Does the man really want YOU or is he looking for someone to take care of him?

Had I asked myself these questions I would not have put myself through three years of hell.

I'm out of that marriage now, thank God, regaining my health and enjoying "widowhood" — something I never thought possible. — Learned The Hard Way

Q. "Who first used the expression 'wet blanket' to describe somebody who puts a damper on the party?"

A. A Scottish novelist named John Galt in a story called "Lawrie Todd." He wrote it in 1830. At least, he was the first to use it in print.

ARE YOU compulsive? What, you don't know? Here's how to find out: Everybody follows some sort of pattern when dressing, bathing, shaving. The man who habitually first shaves the right cheek tends to become faintly uncomfortable if some sort of minor injury forces him to shave the left cheek first. So does the woman who is forced to switch from the right leg to the left leg first. Or whatever. Change your pattern on purpose. How much the change upsets you, if at all, will tell you the extent of your compulsiveness. Or so reports a student of the mental matters.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Winnipeg asks: "Why do you open one club with this hand?"

♠ K J 4 3 ♥ K 7 6 ♦ A 8 4 ♣ K 9 7

This is normal correct procedure and has been so for over 40 years. The idea is to facilitate rebidding while showing at the one level that your spade suit is just a four-carder. When you do open one club with this type of hand and partner raises to two clubs, don't rebid — just pass.

THE ICE PICK.

(SMIRNOFF AND ICED TEA.)

We discovered long ago how well iced tea and Smirnoff go together. But we hesitated to recommend it on the grounds that you might find it too much trouble, steeping the tea and all that fuss.

Now it turns out there are lemon-flavored iced tea mixes on the market that work just fine. And you don't even have to boil water.

Therefore we invite you to try the Ice Pick, a tall, tasty summer drink that's easy to make after all. We only ask that before you serve it, you let everyone know that they're not just drinking iced tea.

THE ICE PICK.

To make an Ice Pick pour 1½ oz. Smirnoff into a tall glass of ice. Fill with lemon-flavored iced tea.

Kuhn re-elected in sudden move

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was re-elected to a second seven-year term today, beating off an American League move to oust him which was led by owners Charles O. Finley of Oakland and Jerry Hoffberger of Baltimore.

They and two other AL owners had voted against Kuhn only 13 hours before today's joint meeting, and it seemed that the best the commissioner could hope for was a staying action in which a final vote on his status would be tabled.

But the Texas Rangers and New York Yankees, who had voted against the commissioner on Wednesday, were swayed overnight, and in the formal vote, Kuhn was re-elected 22-2.

"I would have resigned if it had been tabled," Kuhn said at a news conference. "I have wanted to resign for a long time and return to the practice of law, but the persuasive powers of baseball's senior members persuaded me to continue for the best interests of the game."

While Kuhn was talking, Finley entered the room. The commissioner glared at him and said,

Progress Bulletin Sports

Pomona, California ■ Thursday, July 17, 1975

"You may leave my room, Charlie."

Finley wheeled and shot back as he walked out the door: "Just shows me some more class."

Later Finley told newsmen that the two votes against Kuhn were from Oakland and Baltimore. "I received word today at 7 a.m. that New York and Texas were changing their votes," Finley said.

The Oakland boss did not seem upset over losing the showdown with Kuhn.

"I like to feel we all live in a democratic America," he said. "You win a few and you lose a few. When you lose, you have to lose as graciously as you do when you win."

Finley, however, didn't think Kuhn was a very gracious winner.

Finley said, "After he was notified that he had been re-elected, the commissioner said, 'Thank you, especially those who voted for me. It's too bad it took so long, but that's not surprising, considering the quality of the opposition.'"

"I said, 'What a joke.'"

Kuhn called Wednesday's politicking, "obscene," but apparently some overnight pressure applied by the National League saved the commissioner's job.

Because of the infighting over Kuhn, baseball's assembled bosses made no progress on their other problems, most notably the San Francisco-Oakland Bay area, where two clubs, the Giants and A's, have been considering moving out and where one is almost certain to vacate.

Bids for franchises from several cities, including Seattle and Toronto, were not considered. Kuhn said that the Franchise Committee would continue work in that area.

The owners did hear a report from the Player Relations Committee, but took no action in that regard either.

Kuhn's second seven-year term starts Aug. 12, 1976. He was elected baseball's fifth commissioner in February, 1969, after the owners fired William Eckert on the final day of the 1968 winter meetings. Kuhn was granted a $150,000-a-year contract on Aug. 13, 1969.

No salary terms were announced for his second term in office.

"It was not discussed," Kuhn said.

Finley has had many scrapes with Kuhn. The commissioner fined the Oakland owner for paying performance bonus to Joe Rudi and Gene Tenace following the 1972 World Series and again following the 1973 Series when Finley tried to fire second baseman Mike Andrews because he made two costly errors.

Hoffberger's opposition came from Kuhn's interference in negotiations to sell the Orioles.

Lopes only Dodger to give up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cincinnati's amazing pace before the All-Star game prompts Los Angeles Dodger second baseman Davey Lopes to say, "We've been destroyed psychologically by the way the Reds have been playing."

The outspoken Lopes says he's only being realistic when he says the Dodgers probably won't catch the Reds in the National League West this year. He says 12½ games is just too much to make up.

"I don't think it's impossible, but let's be realistic. We'd have to play .800 ball and they'd have to play under .500, fall on their faces, and they're just too good to do that. I'll take bets they don't play under .500 the rest of the season and that means that, realistically, we won't catch them."

Third base coach Tom Lasorda said the Dodgers have 2½ months left and, "If we catch up one game a week, we'll be back in it by September."

Lopes, however, said, "We can't pick up only one game a week. We'll have to do better than that, and I don't think it's possible. Two weeks ago we won three out of five and lost two games in the standings. It's pretty damn frustrating. Anything is possible, sure, but probable—no."

Lopes added that the Dodgers are not the same this year as they were in 1974.

"When we go on the field, the feeling is not the same," he said. "Something's missing, something intangible. Every guy gives 100 percent out there, but it's something I can't put my finger on. I know we're better than 10 of the 11 other clubs out there but there's a different feeling than last year."

Lasorda said, "The break is what the team needed. I think we can come back, but we're going to have to win it ourselves. We still have 11 games left with Cincinnati and we beat them four straight the last time we played, so I think we can catch them."

During a 90-minute workout at Dodger Stadium, Lopes slugged two homers in batting practice, but quashed rumors he was turning into a long-ball hitter instead of a base stealer.

He hit his fifth and sixth homers last Saturday and Sunday and about that "streak" said, "That's just two days. Home runs aren't my job. Besides, we lost both games."

Others participating in the workout included Bill Buckner, Rick Auerbach, Bill Russell, Steve Yeager and Jim Wynn, all of whom have suffered from an injury this season. Pitcher Don Sutton, recovering from a mild groin injury, also threw on the sidelines.

The Dodgers returned to action tonight against Pittsburgh.

Andy Messersmith (12-6) faces Bruce Kison (8-4). Helmet weekend begins Friday night. All youngsters 14 and under attending any of the three games Friday, Saturday and Sunday, will receive a souvenir batting helmet.

Saturday's game has a 5 p.m. starting time.

Jim Brewer to join Angels

MILWAUKEE — The Angels today announced the acquisition of veteran lefthanded reliever Jim Brewer from the Dodgers.

The 37-year-old Brewer will join the club here in Milwaukee Friday night. Going to the Dodger farm club at Albuquerque in the deal is righthanded reliever Dave Sells who has been pitching for the Halo's Salt Lake City farm club.

Brewer has a 3-1 record with the Dodgers this year, but after a horrible outing against San Diego on the last home stand, the veteran screwball artist's earned run average ballooned to 5.18.

His lifetime record is 65-62 and his screwball makes him especially effective against righthanded hitters.

Today, the Angels sent Ed Figueroa (7-5) against the Brewers. Figueroa will try to stop the Angels' slide out of sight in the American League Western Division.

Jim Colborn (4-7), an old nemesis was the Brewer pitcher in an unusual day game (11:30 a.m. PDT).

For Angel manager Dick Williams, this season may be his first as a loser since he began managing. No team Williams managed has ever finished under the .500 mark. The Halos are now 40-51 and sinking.

"I certainly haven't mellowed," Williams said in a recent interview. "I'll do some criticizing if I think it deserves to be done. But, hell, we've got kids here and we have to explain to them as we go along."

"Sure we want to win in the process," he continued. "But we have to be flexible. We have to hope the same lack of execution doesn't happen too often to the same guy. We're probably a lot more advanced than we're entitled to be."

Jury takes hockey case

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A jury of seven men and five women begin deliberations today on the question of whether a professional hockey player is bound by civil laws in a sport that encourages violence.

The player, David Forbes, a Boston Bruins winger, testified in his own behalf Wednesday, denying that he had used his stick to injure Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars last Jan. 4.

Forbes, 26, said he probably was holding his stick as he skated toward Boucha, intent on settling the score for an earlier "sucker punch."

But Forbes denied any intent to use the stick as a weapon and denied using the butt end as a spear, causing a serious eye injury to Boucha.

The defense rested after Forbes' testimony.

He is the first professional athlete to face criminal charges in the United States from an incident occurring during a sports contest.

Forbes was charged with aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon. The alleged weapon, his hockey stick, was the focal point of Wednesday's closing testimony.

At one point, Forbes demonstrated for the jury how he had skated out of the penalty box, trailing the stick behind him, with the butt end probably exposed four to five inches.

The two players had clashed earlier when both went into a corner for the puck. Forbes admitted landing an elbow on Boucha and crunching the North Star forward into the boards.

Then, Forbes said, Boucha landed a "sucker punch," a blow from behind.

Forbes conceded that he fumed over the incident, screamed at Boucha in the penalty box and tried to think of ways to "even the score."

Forbes said fighting is part of the game, taught to players at an early age.

"That's probably one of the first things that we are taught, that we must fight back and that it's part of the game," he said.

A player who is intimidated, Forbes said, becomes an easy mark. "He would realize he could walk all over me."

Denver Broncos arrive for training at Poly

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

A scrimmage with the Dallas Cowboys will highlight the NFL Denver Broncos' training camp at Cal Poly this year.

The Broncos are due to begin arriving Saturday and two-a-day sessions are slated to begin Monday.

The scrimmage with the Cowboys is scheduled Wednesday, July 30 at Kellogg Field. It will be of special interest because of four area players on the rosters of the two teams.

Denver has offensive tackle Claude Minor who started for the Broncos last year as rookie. Running back Jon Keyworth was the leading ground gainer during the exhibition season last year and performed creditably during the regular season.

The Cowboys have former Poly quarterback Jim Zorn and running back Billy Nash from Claremont-Mudd on their squad. Zorn holds most of Poly's passing records. Nash gained over 1,000 yards as a sophomore for the Stags.

Denver will also scrimmage the Rams. But that scrimmage, August 2, will be at the Rams' camp at Cal St. Fullerton.

John Ralston and the Bronco coaches are scheduled to arrive Friday. But the players will be coming in Saturday and Sunday. Denver will be here until August 8 when the team breaks camp and returns to Denver for its exhibition opener with the Baltimore Colts.

"We feel we have a much more established club this year and we just aren't looking at quite so many people this summer," Ralston said.

"We'll concentrate on finding the right combination early and letting that group develop as a unit, something we think is especially important for our defense."

The veterans report Saturday and the rookies Sunday, a major change. Normally the rookies come in a week to 10 days ahead of the veterans.

"We've seen most of the rookies two or three times this spring," Ralston explained, "so we have a pretty good evaluation on them. We know at least six players are going to make the squad and we want them to get as much work as possible and that means right from the start."

"We also expect a few of the candidates will be obviously over-matched and will leave quickly," Ralston continued. "However, we will keep the majority of the group together right up through our first pre-season game with Baltimore, August 9. That way, we won't have all the rookies walking around on eggs wondering if they are going to be cut every day. It also will give us a good, solid three weeks work with the entire group."

As of Monday of this week, Denver had 82 players on the roster, 42 of them defensive players and 39 offensive. Kicking specialist, Jim Turner is the odd man, but two or three free agents might be added by the time the Broncos arrive at Cal Poly.

Among the veterans are former Ram lineman Phil Olsen who came to the Broncos when the Rams signed wide receiver Otto Stowe. Other new veteran acquisitions are Chuck Walton, Clarence Ellis, Greg Marx, Bill Andrews and Reggie Berry boosting the total to 47.

Defense will still get priority attention in camp as Ralston knows the Broncos must improve to make a serious playoff bid. Last year, the Broncos were particularly vulnerable against the pass.

The return of Paul Smith plus the addition of first round draft choice Louis Wright of San Jose St. and a restructured linebacking corps are expected to result in defensive improvement.

Smith, one of the NFL's premier defensive tackles in '72 and '73, missed nearly all of last year with a ruptured Achilles tendon. Corrective surgery was successful, but how close Smith can come to his previous form is uncertain.

Wright, a 6-2, 204-pound speedster, looks like a sure-fire bet to open a corner along with Calvin Jones. However, Wright will join linebacker Drew Mahalic in Chicago for the All-Star game, August 1, and will miss the first dozen practices at Poly.

Offensively, Ralston feels the Broncos have been championship material the last two years. With Otis Armstrong, the NFL's rushing leader last year and Keyworth, who scored 10 touchdowns last year as a rookie, Denver appears well set. Veterans Floyd Little and Bobby Anderson are the backups.

Rookie Mike Franchowiak and Gary Huffnagle back up veteran Charlie Johnson at quarterback. The trio will be working behind what Ralston feels is a vastly improved offensive line led by Bobby Maples and bolstered by the return of former USC star Marv Montgomery who was out nearly all of last season.

Franchowiak also is expected to relieve Turner of the kickoff duties.

Rams' Chuck Knox greets 62 at camp

FULLERTON — In search of a third consecutive NFC Western Division Title, and perhaps the added riches that lie beyond, the Rams begin summer training camp at Cal State Fullerton with an "advance" group that will report Sunday night.

Coach Chuck Knox will greet a squad of 62, which includes 24 veterans and 38 rookies and free agents, with twice daily practice sessions that start Monday.

The balance of the 52 veterans will assemble Thursday night, July 24. Three rookies, defensive lineman Mike Fanning, of Notre Dame, guard Dennis Harrah of Miami (Fla.), and center Geoff Reece of Washington State, are in the College All-Star Game and will not report until Aug. 2 — one week prior to the pre-season opener, the annual charity game Aug. 9 in the Coliseum against the Dallas Cowboys. Fanning and Harrah were first round draft choices and Reece was a third round pick by the Rams.

Another first round selection, tackle Doug France of Ohio State, will be at Fullerton, along with the club's second round choice, cornerback Monte Jackson of San Diego State.

Among the 24 vets reporting with the advance group are the quarterbacks, centers, newcomers and players who are changing positions. That means James Harris will be on hand to experience his first training camp as the No. 1 quarterback. Last year Harris was an understudy to since-departed John Hadl until the season's sixth game when the former Grambling star came on to win the starting job. Harris led the Rams to seven wins in their last nine games, then quarterbacked them into the NFC Championship Game before losing to Minnesota, and later won MVP honors in the Pro Bowl.

Harris and his backup, Ron Jaworski, will have six veteran receivers to throw to, including two newcomers who will check in on the 20th. They are speedsters Ron Jensen and Otto Stowe, who performed last season for Detroit and Denver respectively. They'll provide the competition for veterans Harold Jackson, Jack Snow Lance Rentzel and Willie McGee.

Knox, whose 786 winning percentage (22-6) is the best among active NFL coaches, has made a few position changes during the off-season. John Cappelletti, who backed up Jim Bertelsen last season, will move to the other running back spot to spell Lawrence McCutcheon and Jim Youngblood will switch from reserve middle linebacker to challenge Ken Geddes on the left side. Both Cappelletti and Youngblood will go to work on the 20th.

Aside from those adjustments, owner Carroll Rosenbloom's Rams will look similar to last season when their 10-4 record was good for a second consecutive division championship. In fact, 21 of the 22 starters are back with only center Ken Iman, traded to St. Louis, among the missing.

Their apparent to that job is six-year veteran Rich Saul, who becomes the youngest member of the offensive line that also includes two 15-year men, tackle Charlie Cowan and guard Joe Scibelli, as well as All-Pro guard Tom Mack and tackle John Williams. This five-some is joined up front by tight end Bob Klein, who had played out his option, but then re-signed with the club last May.

On defense, all 11 regulars return, including All-time great tackle Merlin Olsen, who enters his 14th season. He and teammates up front — ends Jack Youngblood and Fred Dryer and tackle Larry Brooks — topped the NFC in tackling opposing passers last year.

The other members of the defensive unit helped lead the league in two categories; fewest points allowed and fewest rushing yards allowed. They include linebackers Geddes, Isiah Robertson and Jack Reynolds, cornerbacks Charlie Stukes and Al Clark and safeties Bill Simpson and Dave Elmendorf.

Two newcomers will battle David Ray for the place kicking chores — Tom Dempsey, the NFL's distance record holder (63 yds.) who came in a trade with Philadelphia and Grant Guthrie, who had experience with Buffalo before playing in the WFL last year at Jacksonville.

Knox' coaching staff is the same as last year. It includes Ed Alsmen, special assignments; Leeman Bennett, receivers; Tom Catlin, linebackers; Jack Faulkner, special assistant; Ray Malavasi, defensive coordinator; Ken Meyer, offensive coordinator; Eotjah Pitts, offensive backs and special teams; Ray Prochaska, offensive line; and Jim Wagstaff, defensive backs.

Besides the Dallas game Aug. 9, the Rams will also play home pre-season contests with San Francisco (Aug. 16), Philadelphia (Sept. 6) and Oakland (Sept. 11), as well as away games against Buffalo (Aug. 23) and Kansas City (Aug. 30).

The regular season opener is also with the Cowboys, Sept. 21 at Dallas.

Shackelford joins stars

LOS ANGELES — Lynn Shackelford, ex-UCLA basketball star on three NCAA title teams and now the radio and TV color commentator for the Los Angeles Lakers, has joined former Bruin mates in an Aug. 2 charity basketball game at Pauley Pavilion for benefit of the widow and children of the late UCLA track and football star Ron Copeland.

"Shack" will be on hand with such former teammates as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Lucius Allen, Curtis Rowe and Sidney Wicks from the UCLA teams of 1967-68-69 which posted an incredible three-year record of 88 wins and only two losses in sweeping to three NCAA crowns.

Shackelford will emcee the pre-game show as well as serve as game announcer for the exhibition that will see the UCLA cage legends in competition both with and against a plethora of stars from the entertainment world.

Jackie Jackson of the Jackson Five, comedians Cheech and Chong, Georg Sanford Brown, Bernie Casey, Rudy LaRusso, Randy Mantooh, Joe Campanella and Tony King are the latest stars to join Elliott Gould, Kent McCord and Jon Voight for the benefit.

Copeland, the Bruins' 1966 NCAA high hurdles champion and a star wide receiver on Tommy Prothro's 1967 and '68 UCLA grid teams, was assistant track and football coach at Mt. San Antonio College at the time of his sudden death last May 22 at the age of 28.

The monies raised from the game will go to his widow, Mrs. Millicent Copeland, and the couple's three sons, Ron, Jr., 5, Kevin, 3, and infant Kyle Eric born last June 25.

Mike Warren, captain of both the Bruins' 1967 and '68 NCAA championship teams, is chairman of the fund-raising event which is sponsored by the UCLA Alumni Assn.

Tickets, priced from $4 to $7, are available at the Kerechhoff Hall and Athletic Ticket offices on the UCLA campus and at all Liberty and Mutual Ticket agencies.

Cards sign Sun 'grads'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Wide receiver Ike Harris and running back Alonzo Emery have defected from the World Football League and signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Both were drafted by the Cardinals in 1974 but played for the WFL's Southern California Sun last season.

Harris, 6 feet 3 and 205 pounds, was a second-round choice from Iowa State where he caught 76 passes for 1,226 yards and 10 touchdowns during his career. Emery, 5-11 and 185 pounds, played behind the Kansas City Chiefs' Woody Green for three years at Arizona State.

Wall has new life on tour

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — At age 51, Art Wall, suddenly and dramatically, has a new lease on his golfing life.

"It's a wonderful feeling and it's changed my mind about quitting the tour," the soft-spoken, low-key, gentlemanly Wall said today before teeing off in the first round of the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Wall, the 1959 Masters champion and Player of the Year, broke a nine-year victory drought with his triumph in the Milwaukee Open a couple of weeks ago. The 14th career victory for the gentle, graying man came just as he was considering ending his 27-year tour career.

"I had been having a terrible year," Wall said. "I was playing worse than I ever had in my life. I was beginning to believe that I was just wasting my time out here, just taking up a spot and cluttering up the field."

"I made a few little changes, things that made sense to me, things I hadn't been doing for a long time. They seemed to work out. I feel I'm playing pretty solidly now. At least for the moment. I just hope it doesn't go bad on me again."

"Right now I hope to play well at least through Labor Day, have some good, solid tournaments. I'm certainly going to play that long and right now I'm definitely planning on a playing a full schedule at least through next year."

"It's a very nice feeling," he said "to prove to yourself that you can still compete."

With his new-found confidence and rejuvenated game, Wall ranked as one of the chief contenders for the $40,000 first prize in this 72-hole test over the hilly, 7,119-yard, par-71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Among the other top choices were Lee Trevino, Australian Bruce Crampton and Hale Irwin, the former U.S. Open champion who is riding perhaps the hottest streak in the game.

Irwin has won twice in the last three months, has challenged strongly in at least a half dozen others—including last week's British Open—and trails only Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller on the prestigious money-winning list.

Mann fears overconfidence

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Carol Mann has been a hot golfer in recent months and that's what worried her as she prepared for today's start of the 72-hole U.S. Women's Open Championship at the Atlantic City Country Club.

Miss Mann had won twice and been third or better three times, vaulting into third place on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association money winning list with earnings of $45,790.

Miss Mann, a winner in Columbus last week, was concerned she might be overconfident.

"Coming into the Open with a victory I think is very important, but because of it I have to guard against overconfidence and too much momentum," Miss Mann explained.

"I don't want to get too up," added the LPGA president.

The 6-foot-3 Miss Mann pointed out that she isn't the only player in the Open with momentum.

"Don't overlook Jo Anne Carner or Sandra Haynie or Judy Rankin," Miss Mann said after a practice round on the 6,165-yard par-72 course.

"Carner has won three times and she has won five National Amateur titles on courses like this," Miss Mann said. "Haynie is always among the top five, and Rankin has six second-place finishes and she's looking to win."

Miss Mann said the improvement in her game was due to a new style of putting. She described it as "pop putting." You hit the ball like you would use a tack hammer. It was suggested to her by veteran men's pro Billy Casper.

Miss Mann disagreed with some of her golf colleagues in assessing the value of the Women's Open. Miss Haynie, for example, said she viewed it as "just another tournament."

"It's the most important to me and for reasons other than money," said Miss Mann. "I think it's a very significant thing to be recognized as champion of the country. I remember as a child when I had a four-foot putt, I envisioned making it to win the Women's Open. I think it's damn important."

Miss Mann said she thought the short Atlantic City course would be very tough because of the thick rough and the wind that blows off the ocean about 10 miles away. She said the grass around the narrow greens was the highest she'd seen at an Open.

Miss Mann won the Open here in 1965 by two strokes over Kathy Cornelius with a 72-hole total of 290, 10 strokes better than the late Babe Didrickson Zaharias totaled in winning the 1948 Open over the same course.

Former Poly QB is horse trainer

LOS ALAMITOS — Professional football lost him to a skiing accident; the veterinarian profession lost him because it asked for a year's delay. So Steve Rothblum who went from his father's ranch in Sunland to stardom on the football field and a Masters Degree at Cal Poly Pomona, is now working out of the backside at Alamitos Race Course. The backside, in trailer parlance, is the stable area and Rothblum is now a quarter horse trainer.

Rothblum has joined the ranks of a unique group of men who condition the world's fastest horses to race at distances ranging from 300 to 870 yards. It's a demanding life, one that requires being at the track at 5:30 a.m., seven days a week. And it's a business considerably more risky than veterinary medicine and almost as "chancey" as football; a business in which the difference between success and failure is often measured by a nose at the finish line. It's a game in which all depends on a horse that will no doubt eat just as well win or lose.

Only a year ago, Rothblum was weighing offers from both the National and World Football Leagues after a successful career as a quarterback at Cal Poly. He was ready to give pro football a whirl when he injured a knee in a skiing accident. So much for football.

Disappointed but eager to get on with life, Rothblum decided to pursue his longtime ambition to become a veterinarian and, Masters Degree in hand, he applied to vet school. Apparently, however, the vet schools are overcrowded so he was told to wait a year and try again. He opted to wait.

"I walked out of school one day and decided to go into training," he explained as if it were a simple transition.

He turned up on the backside at Los Alamitos last winter with two horses and tacked his trainers license to the wall. The second horse he sent out of the starting gate, a horse named Somerset Lucky, wound up in the winner's circle and if that isn't a record it can't be far off. In the short and busy seven months since that first victory, Rothblum-trained horses have returned checks at a rate which impresses not only their owners but other prospective owners as well.

The change in careers wasn't as sudden and dramatic as it sounds however. For that matter it really wasn't that much of a change. Rothblum grew up around horses on the family ranch in Sunland and had worked with successful quarter horse trainer Gary Sherlock for three years. When he wasn't in the classroom or on the gridiron, he was in the stable area or at the races with Sherlock.

"I learned a lot from Gary and still talk over problems with him a lot," Rothblum said the other night at Los Alamitos. "He and Ronnie Banks (a veteran quarter horse jockey) are probably my closest friends at the track and have taught me a lot about training."

Rothblum's training philosophy is relatively simple. "I just make the horse look and feel as good as I can," he explains. "Feeding and grooming are the most important things so I pay very careful attention to them."

So far it's been working very well. He started seven races here last winter and wound up with one win, one second and a pair of thirds. At Bay Meadows this spring he had seven horses, scored five triumphs and his starts returned checks to the owners (finished in top five) 75 per cent of the time. And through the first 35 nights of the 79-night summer meeting that ends Aug. 20 at Los Alamitos, Rothblum had three wins, four seconds and seven thirds in 41 starts. His stable has increased from two horses last December to 17 at the present time and the prospects appear bright for more growth.

Rothblum's biggest thrill in horse racing, aside from that first victory, came when a 2-year-old colt named Fastest Jet Yet won its first race.

"We bought him for $300," Rothblum recalled. "I had seen him when he was a baby and he had a crippled front leg but I liked his size so when the opportunity came up to get him for that price we had to take it. Then he flipped in the trailer and almost killed himself before they got him back to the ranch. But just watching him develop — he needed a lot of work — has been very exciting for me. He was a very difficult horse to get to gallop, very stubborn. Then one day he made a sudden change and now he does everything right. When he won his first race — that was really a biggie for me."

Kicking around

By Adrian Mercado & Willy Keo

AYSO Regional Commissioners sitting in conclave with Area "G" Commissioner Al Vecchio Tuesday night proclaimed almost in unison the demands of the American Youth Soccer Assn for the season ahead.

Every region could use more referees, more coaches, more fields and more sponsors which sounded like last year's challenges but with every region expanding and some doubling the challenge is greater.

Within these challenges lie the need for clinics for players, coaches and referees . . . and some are in action currently.

Claremont's registrations were way up over 600 eager signees with more expected before league action gets rolling.

Newcomer Hacienda Heights has 220 boys and 10 girls ready to go and forecast 30 or more yet coming in from associated Rowland Heights . . . where a great number of the coaches will be coming from. Wilson High School Field has been obtained for games.

The ACE group had over 200 attendees at a recent clinic and are deep in a community petition trying to interest Alta Loma High School in forming a soccer team this year. ACE includes Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda areas.

Chino will have player registrations in July and August periods to be set yet. Stay tuned for more definite information as to specific dates. Chino AYSO teams will double in number and the crying need is for more coaches. When they appear the clinics will assist in learning the lore of the game.

Upland on the other hand has 74 coaches already and had 240 interested players at clinics including 60 girls. Twenty-two sponsors have already been negotiated for the 66 teams and September 13 has been noted as registration day for Upland. While they have coaches they need referees and fields. The three fields already procured are unique . . . they have lights.

Pomona jumps to 60

Pomona is thinking of 750 to 850 registrations with a strong representation in girls teams. In two years Pomona has jumped from 24 to 43 teams and will be fielding 60 teams by the time the season opens on Sept. 25.

Ontario, with four fields ready, has all the problems and pleasures of the other regions . . . great expansion and a lament calling for more referees and more coaches.

Over the hill at Diamond Bar they're up around 870 players now, and look to go over 900. Starting with 12 teams a couple seasons ago Diamond Bar jumped from 48 last year to 66 with all the incumbent problems.

Diamond Bar will host the 2nd Annual Area "G" Tournament this year on August 2-9-16-23. Play will be confined to Division 1-2-3 Boys based on last year's age groupings which involved three-year spans as opposed to the new boys leagues which will have division groups in two-year spans.

Games will be at Mt. San Antonio College and rosters may go as high as 18 players for the tournament. Each region is expected to bring one referee and one game ball.

AYSO announced it will run two championships for the coming season. One involving a league champion, and a second, involving an all-star team. Playoffs will be patterned after World Cup final eliminations with each team playing 3 games against teams in same bracket rather than a one loss and knockout competition.

Clinics for players, referees and coaches will be upcoming. Specifics will appear here when known, as will registration dates and season opening dates.

AYSO's appeal is out to anyone interested. Experience is not necessary. A new sports magazine devoted to Southern California youth sports carries an informative article on AYSO's purpose . . . YOUTH SPORTS . . . out of Chino.

Catch the July issue and maybe you'll find an interesting avenue of health and relaxation for your son or daughter . . . and yourself. Everyone plays in AYSO, you know.

Things couldn't get much hotter in the soccer world. The Aztecs win over Vancouver's Whitecaps was only a 1-0 margin but it afforded the Tangerine Kids seven points and vaulted them up past Vancouver to a third place landing in the Western Division standings of the NASL. What's important about third place is the possibility of a playoff spot for the Aztecs who may just qualify for one of the four wild card team playoff spots allowed under the league's unique system. Portland's Timbers have shown the way in the west with six players from Wolverhampton's Wolves (first division English team) adding great strength to the Portland lineup. It will be tough for any western team to beat Portland for the top spot but Seattle and Los Angeles could by virtue of high points both be included in the playoffs if their point total exceeds teams of the Central Division.

St. Louis, the NASL club with eight starting St. Louis University players, has added Chelsea's World Cup goalie Peter Bonetti and are way above the other Central teams and may be the only team from their Division to make the playoffs.

All Division winners will enter the playoffs, plus four high point teams . . . two from Western and Central, and two from Northern and Eastern sections. It won't necessarily be one wild card team from each division. The award goes to the teams with highest points and it might work out that both Seattle and Los Angeles could find themselves in the battle for league honors . . . and none from the Central Division, save St. Louis by virtue of topping that division.

Tampa Bay and New York Cosmos look strong for division honors in North and East which would make NASL promoters happy in as much as Pele would mean heavy attendance and be of TV importance to the playoffs. Since the Brazilian's arrival in the U.S. his presence has doubled crowds at all games, including a record league crowd of 35,000-plus when the Cosmos played Washington's Diplomats at Robert Kennedy Stadium in D.C.

Wild card berths

Wild card berths could go to Miami, Washington or Boston from the North and East divisions and brings up the wild possibility of a NY vs Boston confrontation that could find Pele and Eusebio facing each other in a title game, bringing back memories of the sensational duels of 1962 when Santos defeated Benfica for the World Club title in games at Rio and Lisbon. Eusebio was good for one goal and Pele whacked five good ones. Quite amazing to find these two superstars still providing the spark for pro clubs in 1975. Eusebio, Mozambique's gift to soccer, and Pele, catalyst for Brazil's three World Cup crowns, both in fine shape 13 years later. Eusebio is 32 and Pele 34.

Still ahead for the Aztecs are home games vs Dallas (and Kyle Rote, Jr.) on July 19, Hartford Bicentennials on July 26, league-leading Portland on August 9 . . . and one away-game vs San Jose on Aug. 2.

The defending NASL champs can still cut it if they stay cool and field and utilize their passing abilities. This is no time for one-on-one personal glory. A fit Doug McMillan could help considerably now. His recent knee surgery has made him a part-timer this season. It was McMillan's spark that was mainly responsible for the Aztecs championship season last year. He's a team player and much needed if the Aztecs hope to secure a wild card spot and do well in the playoffs in August. First things first . . . like taking Dallas and nailing on some bonus points.

Glendora-SH reaches finals

By MARK GRIP

Formerly unbeaten Glendora-South Hills dropped the first game with Pomona Northwest, 8-4, and came back to win the rematch, 4-0, in District 20 Senior Division Little League Tournament action at Ralph Welch Park in Pomona Wednesday night.

DISTRICT 20 SENIORS
Wednesday's results
Pomona Northwest 8, Glendora-South Hills 4
Glendora-South Hills 4, Pomona Northwest 0
Tonight's games
La Verne vs. Glendora-South Hills, 7:30 p.m.

Sparked by the one-hit pitching of starter and winning pitcher Tony Graham and Gary Manus, South Hills, will move on to the finals.

Should South Hills win tonight, it would force a rematch Saturday in the double elimination tourney.

Graham pitched six innings giving up the only hit, an infield single by David Porter in the sixth, until he was relieved by Manus after he had walked the leadoff batter in the top of the seventh.

After Manus had walked two batters to load the bases with no outs, he came back to retire the next three batters on strikes to preserve the one-hit shutout.

South Hills scored a pair of runs in the first and sixth innings for the victory margin to gain its third victory against one defeat.

Kevin Nichols went two-for-three and Graham and Manus each added a run-scoring triple to lead SH at the plate.

In the first game, won by Northwest, six South Hills errors helped Derek Sutton go the distance on the mound to pick up the victory.

Losing pitcher Chuck Uhl went all the way on the mound for South Hills, giving up 10 hits to add to the misery of the errors.

For the second night in a row, Maury Dudley, Leander Williams, and Andre Bell each had two hits to bolster the NW attack. Daryl Slayton went two-for-four and drove in two runs to help do the damage.

Ken Tillie, James Walker and Nichols each had two hits in four trips to the plate, with Nichols and Mike Escalante collecting two RBI each.

Stags' star gets grant

Scott Lichtig from Claremont-Mudd is one of 32 student-athletes awarded $1000 Postgraduate Scholarships by the NCAA.

Montclair Central remains unbeaten

Montclair Central earned a shot at the District 23 Senior Division Little League Tournament championship Wednesday night at John Galvin Park in Ontario.

Montclair Central 19, Chino Hills 5
Tonight's games
Ontario International vs. Chino National, 5:15 p.m.
Ontario North vs. Chino Hills, 7:45 p.m.

Montclair, unbeaten in its three outings in the playoff tourney, reached the finals by ripping Chino Hills, 19-5, in the battle of the unbeaten.

Winning pitcher Jeff Kiziar went the distance for Montclair, giving up six hits, striking out six and walking five. He also had a double in the game.

The leading hitter for Central was Marty Ogg, who collected three singles at the plate. Punching two hits each were Rod Dayton, Tony Gaylor and Dana Seltzer.

Chino Hills tried to get something going in the final inning, tallying four runs—but obviously it was way short of a winning rally.

In one other tournament game played Wednesday night, Ontario North slipped past Upland Foothill, 6-4, in the losers bracket.

Upland Foothill was eliminated, while Ontario North will face Chino Hills tonight at 7:45 on the John Galvin diamond.

Ontario scored all six of its runs in the first two innings, and then had to hold off Upland in the late innings.

In one other game scheduled for tonight, Ontario International tangles with Chino National in the loser bracket. Games time is slated for 5:15 p.m.

The winner of that game will meet the winner of the Ontario North-Chino Hills game Friday for the right to face Montclair Central in the championship game Saturday.

DB girls fall again

Diamond Bar suffered its second loss in as many nights Wednesday by dropping a 20-5 decision to host Upland in the Girls Inter-city All-Star Softball Tournament.

In Minor Division play, Diamond Bar's girls collected their second consecutive tournament victory with a 12-6 decision over Upland.

In the Major Division game, Upland's Linda Carver pounded out three hits and drove in five runs—two in the first, two in the second and one in the fourth.

Carol Hall had two double and one RBI for Diamond Bar in the game.

Diamond Bar's Cindy Beck doubled to highlight her team's Minor Division triumph. Upland's Leslie Smith tripled in the contest.

The Diamond Bar girls will travel to Ontario Friday to take on the Ontario girls at Colony Park. Beginning at 6 p.m.

Rosette set for Forum

INGLEWOOD — North Hollywood's Raul Rosette has been added to the Forum's championship boxing card, August 2. Rosette, with an 18-1 record, will meet Ricardo Delgado of Mexico City, the 1968 Olympic Games flyweight gold medal winner.

The feature event is the 15-round bantamweight title match between champion Alfonso Zamora and Thanomjit Sukthothai, the challenger from Thailand. Also on the program is a featherweight 10-rounder between Art Hafey and Salvador Torres.

Angel Cordero is suspended

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Ace jockey Angel Cordero Jr., the second-leading money winner in the country last year, was suspended for 15 days for reckless riding, Hollywood Park officials announced Wednesday.

A track spokesman said the suspension on Cordero, who rode Cannonade to victory in the Kentucky Derby last year, was the first 15-day suspension in several years.

The unusual penalty was imposed in connection with a race last Sunday in which Cordero reportedly rode Bending Away in front of one horse around the last turn and cut off another horse down the stretch, the track spokesman said.

A former national champion in races won, Cordero is one of only two jockeys to have won more than $4 million dollars at racing.

In the feature race Wednesday, longshot Messenger of Song slipped through a narrow opening around the final turn and raced down the stretch to win the $44,650 Lakes and Flowers Handicap by two lengths.

Ridden by Jerry Lambert at 115 pounds, Messenger of Song paid $25.20, $8.00 and $5.40 to win the seven furlong race for three-year-olds and up in 1:20.35.

Glendora Amer. tops La Verne

Glendora American, led by winning pitcher Mike Bandzej's grand slam home run, piled up seven runs in the first inning and then held on to defeat La Verne, 7-5, in the opening round of the District 20 Major Division Little League Area II Playoffs at the La Verne Little League field.

After giving up the seven runs to the Glendora club, La Verne sent in relief pitcher Ron Wealand.

Wealand blanked Glendora through the next five innings, giving up only three hits while fanning seven.

Don Skloss led the Glendora hitting attack with a three-for-four performance at the plate, including a double with two runs batted in.

Tim Wessel went three-for-three for La Verne, including two doubles. Craig Phillips hit a solo home run

Albacore driving anglers bananas

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A streamlined streak of sea lightning with the kick of a mule and the intrigue of a whodunit is driving Southern California fishermen daft earlier than usual this summer.

It's the albacore, one of the tuna clan. His fame is far-flung among the knowing, his exploits grow with the telling.

It is called by such names as:

—Silver Torpedo, one of the fastest fish alive, able to dive to great depths, suspected of migrating 10,000 miles a year, a hellion when hooked.

—Chicken of the Sea, nearly all sweet, white meat, more like chicken than fish, and rates among the finest food the ocean offers.

—Longfin for the long, sharp fin down his sleek back.

Fast-moving schools spread 150 miles wide and 100 miles long. When it mysteriously shows up by countless thousands off the Southern California coast, the fish touches off a summer madness.

The albacore run this year began the second week of June, about four weeks early. The best fishing has been about 60 to 110 miles from San Diego and around San Clemente Island.

"All signs point to a real good albacore season," said Dana Wharf Landing Manager Dan Hansen. "The sea temperatures locally are in the low 60s, low for this time of the year, but excellent to attract the elusive fish closer to the mainland coast."

When oldtimers talk of albacore, they tell of tangled lines, of nautical marathons, of the surface boiling with fish that snap voraciously at anything, of a fisherman landing a half dozen as fast as he can reel them in.

And they tell of trolling for hours through a sea swarming with these mystery fish, with never a strike. They can't say why.

They tell of tagging albacore off San Diego in August and netting them off Japan in February, but they can't say for sure where they spawn.

One might say albacore are poor man's marlin. They rank with yellowfin tuna and skipjack for spunk, beat them for eating.

"Hookup!" That cry, the signal that at last a trolling jig has brought action, sends lounging anglers on a sportfishing boat leaping for their rods, scrambling for fresh bait.

"Quick," each tells himself, "hit 'em while they're hot!" Now the sea is boiling with longfins. They swirl and flip just below the surface.

"Comin' through!" cries a sweating fisherman with 30 pounds of fury on his line.

His quarry plunges like a race horse toward the other end of the boat.

He follows as best he can, feverishly trying to keep his line from fouling. "Lemme under, lemme under!" he cries to those in his way.

A wild melee of lines, a frenzied flipping of rods—over, under, in front or behind.

Now six to 10 of the 35 or so fishermen aboard are hooked up. Each has on his hands a darting, plunging, two-foot demon.

Down, down, down their fish charge, toward the ocean floor. Stout poles arc.

Longfin furies charge this way and that, in and out, foul a half-dozen lines in a flash, scrape the keel—anything to shake those maddening hooks.

On the boat, near-chaos reigns with fishermen scrambling over one another.

The decks are slick and gory, splattered with blood and silvery mangled anchovies.

As suddenly as they came, they vanish.

The engine roars, white foam swells around the bow and the boat takes off across the blue expanse, looking for more albacore. It may find them in two minutes. Or it may see no more that day.

Albacore range up to 95 pounds, but most of those caught are under 40.

Abalones get new homes on OC coast

LONG BEACH—Marine biologists from the Department of Fish and Game are getting ready for a large-scale abalone transplant operation intended to help reestablish sizeable abalone populations along parts of the Orange County coast.

The project, being undertaken in cooperation with Orange County, calls for planting 14,000 juvenile abalones in special marine habitat areas in water of the Heisler Park Ecological Reserve near Laguna Beach.

The artificial abalone habitats were constructed of more than 500 large concrete construction bricks which DFG divers have placed in three areas on the ocean floor within the reserve. These hollow bricks will provide both living space and protection for the young abalones.

Depending on weather and water conditions, DFG divers have scheduled the transplant operation for Wednesday.

Funds for the $5,000 project are being provided by the Orange County Board of Supervisors from fish and game fines collected in the county. The board appropriated the funds at the request of the county fish and game advisory commission.

Walter Fiedler, chairman of the advisory group, noted that abalone once existed in large numbers along the Orange County coast. "We hope this project will be a major step in restoring these populations," Fiedler said.

Possible causes of the large decrease in abalones in the area, according to DFG biologists, include warm ocean water temperatures in the late 1960s which caused the disappearance of kelp, on which abalone feed, from many areas, as well as pollution and possible over-harvesting by sport and commercial divers.

It could be record

LAGUNA BEACH — Department of Fish and Game marine biologist Charlie Hooker is investigating reports of a record 47½-pound California halibut taken Sunday off Laguna Beach by a Fullerton woman.

Ruth Becker was fishing aboard the partyboat Matt Walsh out of Davey's Locker, Newport Beach, when she tempted her large catch with a live anchovy, then managed to reel it in at the end of a 10-pound test line.

If Mrs. Becker's catch is verified, it would eclipse the state hook and line record of 46 pounds eight ounces set by Ron Buhr of Santa Ana fishing off Santa Cruz Island on March 31, 1974.

According to employees of Davy's Locker, the halibut was photographed, weighed and then filleted aboard the Matt Walsh.

Ontario Pinto triumphs

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent
Alan Dehart pitched a two-hitter and received excellent support from his teammates, as the Ontario Pinto All-Stars downed the Upland American All-Star team, 9-1 Wednesday night. This was in the first game of the single elimination Montclair Invitational Tournament played at John F. Kennedy Field, in Montclair.

PONY LEAGUE
Wednesday's results
Ontario Pinto 9, Upland American 1
Claremont 7, Chino 4
Tonight's games
Cucamonga vs. Ontario Palomino, 6 p.m.
Upland Pioneer vs. Montclair, 8:30 p.m.

Dehart allowed the only run to Upland in the first inning when Todd Taylor reached first on an error, stole second and third, and scored on Dave Gonzales' sacrifice fly.

The game remained close until the bottom of the fourth when Ontario Pinto scored four times.

In all, Ontario tallied eight hits. Dana Lima, Kevin O'Brian, and Dehart each collected two hits, while Jerry Lange, Ron Sanchez, and Keith Myrick got one apiece.

In the second game of the tournament, Claremont had to go nine innings to defeat Chino, 7-4. Claremont's starting pitcher Mike Pearson went seven innings allowing but three hits while striking out nine.

Pitching in relief, James Hood did not allow a hit or run, and he fanned three.

Claremont's Jeff Smith picked up three RBI with three base hits. He knocked in Mike Clayton with Claremont's first run in the first inning. With two outs in that frame, Nicky Michaels singled and eventually came around to score on a hit by Jim Magnusson. Michaels also doubled in the third Claremont run in the third.

Ted Guillen hit a home run to right field for Chino's first score. After one unearned run, Alphy Reina singled home Ricky Taylor for Chino's third tally.

Claremont produced a go-ahead run in the top of the seventh, only to see Chino come back to tie in the bottom of the inning. This then set the scene for Jeff Smith in the ninth stanza, and he came up with his third base hit of the night to knock in the go-ahead runs. Smith then scored on a fielder's choice to make the final 7-4.

Cucamonga will take on Ontario Palomino at 6 tonight, and Upland Pioneer will face host Montclair at 8:30 p.m. The winner of the early game will meet Ontario Pinto at 8:30 p.m. Friday evening.

Pigeon limit recommended

LONG BEACH — The Department of Fish and Game has recommended both a shorter season and a reduced bag limit for band-tailed pigeons this year, the DFG announced in releasing proposals for 1975-76 dove and pigeons seasons in California.

Pigeon seasons, which ran 30 days in both the northern and southern areas last year, would last only 16 days, and the daily bag and possession limit would be reduced from last year's eight to six.

Recommendations for dove season are unchanged from those for last season—a split 46-day season with a limit of 10 per day, 20 in possession after opening day.

Final action on the 1975-76 regulations will be taken by the California Fish and Game Commission July 25 in Monterey.

The federal framework within which state regulations must be set is unchanged from last year, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

According to the DFG, the recommendation for cutting back the season and bag limit for pigeons is based on data from Washington, Oregon and California where harvest figures have fallen significantly.

Both Oregon and Washington report a 43 percent drop in the pigeon kill over the last 10 years, and, although the California harvest has varied widely year to year, the 1974-75 take of 209,900 was low but not the lowest reported take.

Pico Rivera angler leads Fat Cat Derby

ORANGE — A nine-pound seven-ounce channel catfish landed recently by Normal Larimore of Pico Rivera is leading the big "Fat Cat" Derby at Irvine Lake, according to Mrs. Alice Carlson, lake manager. She says larger catfish were caught, but anglers catching them weren't eligible for the derby because they had not pre-registered at an L & G Sporting Goods Store.

"We had other people wanting to register their catches," she said, "but we couldn't count them. Fishermen have to go to an L & G store first, register there for the derby, pick up an official registration slip, and then come fishing here."

Two anglers who could be at the top of the derby, but had not pre-registered, were Glen Duncan of Torrance and Gary Wilhite of Orange. Duncan landed a 13-pound 5-ounce catfish over the weekend, while Wilhite boated a 13½-pounder. Both anglers did qualify, however, for an Irvine Lake Whopper Club trophy (minimum weight for catfish is 12 pounds).

Baseball is healthy

Crowd goes up

By Associated Press

Bucking economic bad times, major league baseball attendance is up nearly five per cent in 1975, a trend which would result in a record total of more than 31 million persons paying their way into the stadiums this season.

Perhaps because it's one of the cheapest forms of entertainment at a time when many cannot afford to travel far or spend much, baseball is enjoying a banner season. Fourteen teams show increased attendance figures at the All-Star break, and three clubs already have drawn more than a million paying customers.

An Associated Press survey found that the 24 clubs have attracted 16,817,710 persons paying their way into games this season, an increase of 4.8 per cent and 800,000 persons for the same number of games at this point in the 1974 season.

There could be a reversal in this upward trend if pennant races do not develop the remainder of the season. Cincinnati and Oakland are threatening runaways in their respective divisions, and Pittsburgh and Boston have comfortable leads in the two remaining divisions.

Not surprisingly, those are four of the teams showing attendance increases. And to prove that winning your division is not the only way to bring out the customers, the New York Yankees and Milwaukee Brewers show the most dramatic attendance increases.

The Chicago White Sox,

Atlanta Braves and New York Mets, all doing worse than expected, have suffered the most, with each club showing a decline of more than 150,000 fans midway through the season.

The Yankees, meanwhile, have drawn 739,320 fans to Shea Stadium to see their revamped lineup which includes Catfish Hunter and Bobby Bonds. That is 252,000 fans more than the Yankees had drawn at this time last year, an increase of nearly 52 per cent.

Milwaukee, with Henry Aaron in its competitive lineup, has drawn 771,661 fans, an increase of 270,658 persons and a jump of 49 per cent over 1974.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Two University of Oklahoma experts on sleep think that a severely handicapped California girl can progress beyond her present 200-word vocabulary, but they don't know how far.

The girl, nicknamed "Genie" by the professors, was found in 1970, at the age of 12, in a bedroom where she had been restrained, either in a cage-like bed or strapped to a potty chair, since the age of two, when her psychological development ceased. She also was extremely underdeveloped physically.

Legion plans breakfast

A pancake breakfast will be sponsored Sunday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. by Squadron 30, Sons of the American Legion in Pomona.

The breakfast will be held at the American Legion Post 30 in Pomona.

Proceeds from the breakfast will benefit the Southwest Little League teams in Pomona.

Cost is $1 per person.

Sleep experts optimistic about retarded girl

Father kept her 'caged up' for 10 years

She was found when her father, who had dominated the family, committed the suicide. Her mother, legally blind, was ordered to undergo intensive psychotherapy. Genie was hospitalized for six months and then placed in a foster home. She is still there.

Meanwhile, authorities turned to specialists at the University of California at Los Angeles for help.

One of the specialists asked Dr. Jay Shurley, professor of psychiatry and behavioral science at the OU Health Sciences Center, to apply his sleep study expertise to the case.

Since then, Dr. Shurley and Kirmach Natami, a research psychologist at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oklahoma City, have made periodic trips to California to study Genie's development by monitoring her sleep patterns.

"After a few nights of monitoring sleep, a pattern emerges, which hopefully enables us to determine the current level of development of the subject—in this case, Genie," Natami says.

Because sleep patterns change as persons age and develop, Natami said, "We are able to determine changes in developmental level."

Natami made a fourth and probably final trip to California in May for further testing to see how Genie had progressed since the last visit in 1972.

Presently, Genie, who is physically fully developed, mixed a vocabulary of about 200 words with sign language to communicate.

Natami said the girl is very curious about her surroundings, and this is one important reason he and his colleagues feel Genie has a chance for continued intellectual and psychological growth.

Nixon partners battle IRS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Alleging harassment, eight partners of a former attorney to ex-President Richard Nixon have gone to court seeking an injunction against the Internal Revenue Service.

The eight, partners of Herbert Kalmbach in two investment companies, include former Nixon tax attorney Frank DeMarco. They contend the IRS is harassing them in a search for possible illegal campaign contributions.

Bruce I. Hochman, the attorney who filed the action in U.S. District Court, said the records of Triangle Investment Co. and Partners Investment Co. were first examined by the IRS last year.

Accountant Arthur Blech refused to honor an administrative summons when the IRS reportedly tried to go over the records again later that year and early this year, Hochman said, on the grounds that it was an unwarranted second examination.

The IRS then told the eight individuals they had alleged tax deficiencies on their 1971 federal income tax returns.

The suit, filed Friday, seeks a halt to collection of $60,436 in taxes from DeMarco; $52,687 from Blech; $139,379 from William C. Baker; $72,887 from James Knapp; more than $64,000 from William Ray; $46,832 from George Woodford; $4,067 from Harold Beral, and $2,027 from Sherwood Chillingworth.

The IRS made no effort to examine the personal records of all the partners in Triangle, Hochman said.

MORE PASSENGERS — Officials at Ontario International Airport counted 117,526 passengers last month, a 3.7 per cent hike over the 113,313 persons reported the previous June.

Last month's count pushed the six month total to 592,728 slightly below the 607,100 for the same period last year.

Air cargo activity showed a decline last month. It dropped from 552,231 pounds in June 1974 to 450,100 pounds last month.

Flight operations increased during the comparison months — 12,551 last month and 10,125 the previous June.

NOT BEING BOUGHT — The California Parks Department does not intend to purchase La Sierra Rancho Hills between Riverside, Corona and Norco for a state vehicular recreation area.

An initial investigation by the staff showed the property wouldn't be suitable for a state park unit although it does have some potential and attractiveness for off-road vehicle use, said Herbert Rhodes, director.

The state is now analyzing a number of areas for possible purchase to serve the Los Angeles Basin as vehicular recreation areas, he added.

FOR THE JOBLESS — Many California residents without jobs who have exhausted their rights to unemployment benefits may be entitled to extra payments, said Jim Lorenz, state employment director. He advised unemployed workers in special and extended assistance programs to check with their nearest unemployment insurance office of the Employment Development Department.

The Emergency Compensation and Special Unemployment Assistance Extension Act signed into law June 30 provides up to 13 weeks of extra benefit payments to eligible jobless workers who are still unemployed and available for work.

SWIM PROGRAMS — The Ontario Recreation Department will hold its third session of swim lessons at five pools July 21 to Aug. 1. Persons may register Friday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The pool locations are Bon View Park, 1010 S. Bon View Ave., Colony Park, 1240 W. Fourth St., De Anza Park, 1405 S. Fern Ave., John Galvin Park, I Street and Grove Avenue, and Vineyard Park, 1530 E. Sixth St.

Programs and prices include: 1 to 3 years old, $5; 3 to 4, $3; 5 and older, $3; handicapped swimming, Bon View pool only, $5; advanced beginners, $3; and adult and senior citizen swimming, $3.

NEW OFFICERS — Gertrude E. Lowe has been installed as president of the newly organized senior citizen club at Colony Park Community Center in Ontario.

Other officers are Dolly Pedro, vice president; Abby Reynolds, secretary-treasurer; Heading various committees are Isabel Olivetti, membership and bingo; Belle Shipley, hospitality; and Lillian Rankin, sunshine.

A potluck dinner and meeting will be held July 22 at 11:30 a.m. Persons over 50 are invited to attend.

Two firemen given medals for bravery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Los Angeles city firemen have been awarded Medals of Valor for saving the life of a workman trapped in a cave-in.

Kirk Bingham, a fireman, and Clyde Piephof, an ambulance driver, received the awards Thursday. They were honored for rescuing Alfredo Mercado, who was buried under five feet of dirt in a 35-foot ditch last year.

The two men leaped into the ditch to rescue Mercado despite the potential of another collapse.

Jobless man has (canvas) roof over his head

VALENCIA (AP) — James Maddox knew he was in trouble when he phoned his mortgage company for a home loan extension and was put on hold — and then disconnected.

Maddox, 50, his wife, Shirley, two daughters, Carole, 15, and Jackie, 12, and son Dennis, 17, ended up in a tent pitched in a trailer park.

For the last 10 years, Maddox had worked for the General Motors plant in Van Nuys. Despite seasonal layoffs, strikes and work stoppages, he somehow always managed to make it.

But this time everything went wrong. The Maddoxs were evicted from their home in Simi Valley, and his $70 weekly unemployment check and his wife's small salary for working nights in a machine shop weren't enough to rent a home or apartment.

The total cost of tenting is only $100 a month. What was once a fun thing to do on long weekends and vacations turned out to be a lifesaver, said Mrs. Maddox.

"The tent sleeps five comfortably," she said. "We have a stove and ice chest. The water and toilet facilities are provided by the trailer park. The kids have use of the pool and recreational area of the park.

"But most important, we have food in our stomachs and some money left to buy gas for the family car so Jim can look for work."

Job hunting is especially tough because he was laid off by General Motors. Prospective employers fear he would go back as soon as the plant begins hiring again.

The family is also worried that Mrs. Maddox may be laid off her $2.25-an-hour job. But that would make them eligible for food stamps. "Now we are $3 over the limit because Jim's unemployment and my salary totals $3 over what it takes to get on the food stamp list," Mrs. Maddox said.

Still, Maddox feels he is better off than some workers he says are forced to live out of their cars and avoid bill collectors. "We tore up our credit cards a long time ago," he said. "We owe no one. As long as we have a roof over our heads — even if it's made of canvas — with the help of God, we'll make it."

Board acts to curb motorcycle pollution

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new set of graduated emission controls has been adopted by the state Air Resources Board designed to curb the massive problem of motorcycle pollution in California.

The new standards will limit motorcycle exhaust to 10 hydrocarbon grams per kilometer by 1978, five hydrocarbons in 1980 and one hydrocarbon by 1982.

The smog board originally had proposed adoption of the one hydrocarbon limit by 1978, but motorcycle industry representatives told the board it could not achieve such a standard by that time.

The industry representatives also criticized the board for attempting to set separate pollution standards for California's 671,000 motorcycles which differ from those being considered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"We believe the board's proposal is not technologically feasible nor cost effective," Stuart Ross, general counsel of the Motorcycle Industry Council, told the board's public hearing. "Moreover, it is economically harmful, wasteful of our oil resources, and most importantly totally unnecessary."

Dennis David, of Kawasaki Motors, stated flatly that the one hydrocarbon standard "is beyond the reach of our capabilities" and that if it were adopted "we would have no choice other than to cease distributing our motorcycles in this state."

Most four stroke motorcycles already meet the 1978 and 1980 limits. Industry officials had indicated a greater technological problem in restricting emissions from two stroke motorcycles and the phase-in controls adopted by the board may prevent two-strokes from being dropped from the market.

Board chairman Tom Quinn complained of EPA's slowness in implementing pollution standards for motorcycles and said "it's obvious the time has come to control motorcycles to some extent."

Laimonis Embrekts, of AMF Harley-Davidson, said the technology of motorcycle emission controls is in its early stages and "none of our models can be modified to meet the standards prior to January 1, 1978."

Jetfoil: rapid-transit vehicle of the future?

HONOLULU (AP) — When it's sitting at the dock the 90-foot 112-ton vessel looks like just another ungainly double-deck harbor cruise boat. But when its twin gas turbine waterjet engines begin sucking up and expelling 220 tons of seawater per minute, the hull rises smoothly and the craft quickly accelerates to nearly 50 miles an hour, only knife-like steel struts slicing the water.

This is the Seaflyte Jetfoil, billed as the nation's first commercial hydrofoil and an eventual answer to commuters' dreams in many cities. The first of three Jetfoils built by the Boeing Aerospace Co. for Seaflyte was tested here for several weeks and began passenger service in mid-June with less than capacity crowds aboard.

The craft makes daily runs to neighboring islands, competing with established airline service. But the Jetfoil is being watched closely for its potential on shorter commuter runs.

Its designers talk of pleasant, smooth commuter service from Great Neck to Manhattan in 18 minutes, San Francisco to the San Francisco Airport in 38 minutes and Bremerton to Seattle in 21 minutes.

Hawaii officials including the governor have ridden the Jetfoil and are looking at the possibility of buying and subsidizing the 250-passenger craft to cut the traffic jams between Honolulu and its seaside suburbs.

"It does have a jiggle, joggle," says a Seaflyte technical adviser, Justus Muller. "It's like a ride on a train back in the days when there was such a thing as a good train ride."

To many who took demonstration rides here the Jetfoil also suggested a plane, and in fact there are marked similarities.

The submerged hydrofoil beneath the struts is like the wing of an airplane, and the 3,000-horsepower engines do essentially the same thing with water that a jet aircraft engine does with air.

Passengers sit in a two-level air-conditioned cabin complete with airline-style seats, fold-down trays and attendants to serve food. The ocean swells and chop pass beneath the hull, and the motion the passenger feels is more like a plane in flight turbulence than a ship at sea.

The smooth ride is aided by a computer-controlled automatic pilot.

"In effect the skipper operates the vessel by telling the computers which direction he wants to go, at what speed and at what height," says Muller. "The computers do all the rest. The skipper and co-pilot really only serve as lookouts."

In swells higher than eight feet the automatic pilot follows the rise and fall slightly. When a swell reached 20 feet the Jetfoil begins to pitch and dive, officials say. But they note that sea that heavy is rare even in Hawaiian waters, which are generally rougher than most areas where the Jetfoil could be used for tourists or commuters.

'Dark Horse'

"Dark Horse" is a term, first used in 1844, in American politics to describe a major party presidential candidate who is not expected to receive the nomination.

Test results hold up bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County supervisors have delayed action on an ordinance banning cars with catalysts from fire hazard areas because tests showed cars without the smog control devices also set weeds on fire.

The ordinance was sent back to committee for more study Thursday. It was proposed after tests showed a catalyst-equipped auto started a fire when it was driven in tall grass.

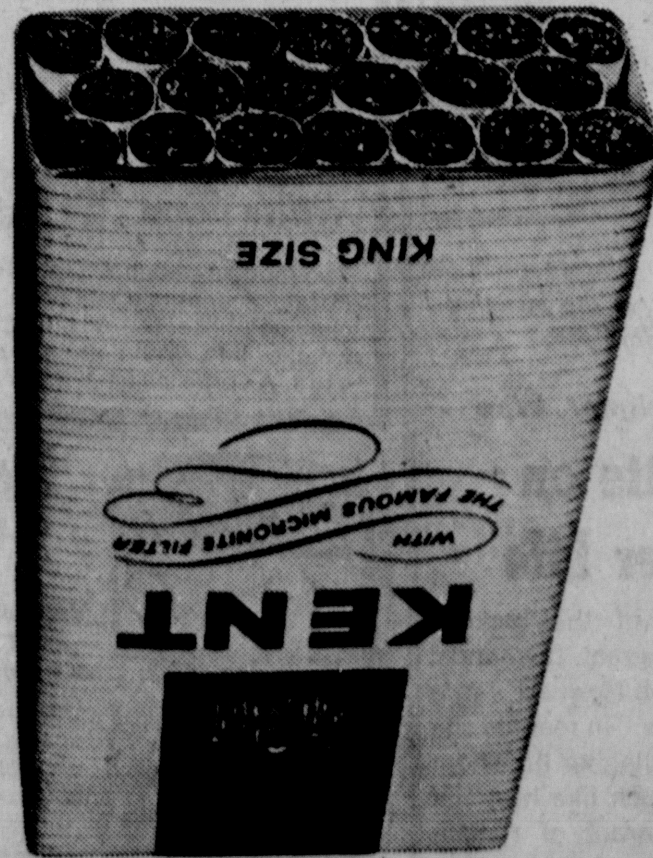

But further tests showed an auto without the catalyst also set weeds on fire.

The new mature woman

Has a variety of choices

By LYNNE ABRAHAM
Center on Mature Women (Second in series)

"One morning, as I waved goodbye to my husband and three teenagers going off to their day's activities, I asked myself: 'What am I going to do the rest of today, and tomorrow, and really, the rest of my life?'"

Catherine Miller's dilemma is one faced by millions of middle-aged women: what to do with themselves in their second 40 years. Hers was resolved by returning to a successful newspaper career, relinquished when she felt her family needed her at home.

Not everyone has the ability or opportunity to write for a newspaper. But every mature woman today — married or single — does have a variety of choices. According to her personal circumstances, talents and tastes, she is free to take a paying job, pursue hobbies both for fun and profit, resume her education, look for a new way of life or relax in the old one.

Increasingly, women are seeking something meaningful to enrich — not replace — home and family. Bernice Neugarten, professor of human development at the University of Chicago, sees "reassessment of self" as a prevailing mid-life theme.

Stock-taking can be complicated, and counseling often helps. Women are using consciousness-raising encounters, career workshops and life-planning courses to help identify their skills and interests, and guide them toward realistic choices.

Today half the women in this country between 45 and 65 hold a job. Personal satisfaction is an important factor, but most of these women work because they have to. Unfortunately, those who return to the job market in their middle years often find themselves relegated to low-paying, traditionally female positions — file clerks, waitresses, secretaries in the steno pool.

Older women are valuable employees. Job studies consistently show that mature workers often perform better, are absent less, and are generally more dependable and responsible than younger women. But, to get ahead, mature women must analyze the types of jobs available and candidly assess their own prospects for filling them.

Some women are "recycling" themselves for the job market through vocational training programs and higher education. Institutions are responding with more scholarship aid and innovative programs such as weekend classes and off-campus studies. Most important, some are awarding credits for life experience.

A college dean explains: "If a student has been a labor leader — or a Girl Scout leader — it could be worth credits toward a degree."

Even in this period of high unemployment, there's still a need for services. Some creative self-starters are turning hobbies into profitable careers. By running catering services, antique shops, and boutiques, these women are earning money while retaining their freedom.

Devoting one's life to the home can be rewarding, too, although the feminist movement has made some homemakers feel guilty about it. That criticism has sparked a drive to upgrade both homemaking and volunteerism — another target of the feminists. "The role of volunteer women must be restored with honor," asserts Margaret Mead.

Options are not unlimited. Realistically, mature women are restricted by economic pressures, family demands, personal liabilities, and subtle and not-so-subtle discrimination. But for a woman with more free time and energy than ever before to pursue all opportunities, it's a wonderful time to be alive.

Elinor Guggenheimer, New York City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs, boasts of having had six different careers in her 62 years. Her advice to the mature woman: "Try everything! The people next to you are just as scared as you are!"

Essential

Iron is an essential mineral, but one frequently found lacking in the American diet. It is needed in red blood cells to carry oxygen from the lungs to all cells of the body for the release of energy. A deficiency of iron can lead to simple anemia and a general feeling of fatigue.

Wilcie and Vannah vows are repeated

The First Baptist Church in Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Gretchen Vannah of Walpole, Mass., and James MacLynn Wilce, Jr., of Pomona.

The couple was married by the Rev. Edward Cole in a doubling ceremony followed by a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Vannah of Walpole, Mass. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Wilce of Pomona.

Karen Vannah of Walpole, Mass., was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Steve Zimmerman of Claremont. Ushers were Paul Finck of La Verne and William M. Vannah of Walpole, Mass.

Bridesmaids were Elizabeth Wilce and Esther Contreras.

Lethal hazards

Un-seat-belted car occupants can become lethal hazards in a crash. Quoting an extensive study by Donald F. Huelke of the University of Michigan Medical School, the July Reader's Digest notes that car occupants hurled against each other caused or aggravated injuries in 22 percent of crashes in which more than one person was in the car. In 13 percent of the cases, rider-to-rider buffeting caused a death or severe injury.

Need great

The need for iron is greatest during rapid-growth periods and during the child-bearing years of women. This accounts for the fact that iron-deficiency anemia is frequently found in infants.

Chamber music debut delayed

The world premiere of Oliver Knussen's chamber music work, "Nocturne," scheduled to be performed at the Claremont Music Festival Wednesday night, was postponed when the 23-year-old English composer gabled from London that he was unable to complete the piece in time for the concert.

The score was to have been sent by plane to arrive Monday, and festival musicians had scheduled some 10 hours of rehearsal on the work before Wednesday's concert. A concerto by 18th Century composer George Philip Telemann for trumpet, two oboes, bassoon and harpsichord was performed in its place.

Knussen's work had been commissioned by the festival. Giora Bernstein, founder-director of the festival, said that Knussen gave no reason for failing to complete the score other than "Project delayed."

Bernstein said Knussen will probably complete the work and send it later, possibly in time to be performed at this summer's festival.

TEMPTING GROUP — The Temptations, Motown recording artists, will perform at the Universal Amphitheater at 8:30 tonight, Friday and Saturday. The group will do its hit numbers, "Shakey Ground," "Happy People," and others, including the newest release, "Glass House." The members are Richard Street, in front, and, from left, Otis Williams, Melvin Franklin, Dennis Edwards and Glenn Leonard.

Gallery slates tryouts

The Peanut Gallery, youth wing of the Gallery Theater, Ontario, will hold auditions for "Peter Pan" at the theater, C Street and Lemon Avenue, at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The fantasy will be staged at 1 p.m. Saturday for six weeks starting Aug. 23.

Currently playing at the Peanut Gallery at 1 p.m. each Saturday is "The Wizard of Oz," starring Laurel Shipley as Dorothy, Jim Lowry as the Tin Man, Frankie Minano as the Cowardly Lion and Branch Woodman as the Scarecrow. Tickets are on sale at the door.

Cal Poly to offer musical

The theater arts department of Cal Poly will present the musical fantasy, "The Fantasticks," in the University Theater Aug. 15, 16, 21, 22 and 23.

The show was written by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, co-authors of "I Do, I Do" and "Celebration."

Directing the production is James L. Martin, theater instructor. Martin is conducting the show in a summer stock-type atmosphere, with all the technical work being done by the actors themselves. David Miller is technical director, and the choreographer is transfer student Carol Harmer. Jim Lane and Jeanne Ringland are sharing the musical director role.

The story concerns a Boy (Keith Nagy of Fontana), a Girl (Lynn Lunquist of Montclair) and their two fathers (Lew Crouse of West Covina and Scott Poindexter of San Dimas). The men secretly plot to get the two children to marry, using an elaborate feud to mislead the children. Assisting in the undertaking are El Gallo (Barry Moore of Covina), Henry Albertson, a Shakespearian actor (David Miller of Pomona) and Mortimer, a death scene expert (Brian Gale of Alta Loma). Rounding out the cast is the Mute (Kristen Fosteen of West Covina).

Woman loses 100 years

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The State Department of Motor Vehicles computer knocked 100 years off the age of Mrs. Maude G. Tull.

The computer rejected her application for renewal of her driver's license. Information fed to the computer showed she was born on Feb. 3, 1972, and 3 year olds aren't allowed to drive in California.

A check of the original application showed Mrs. Tull was born Feb. 3, 1872, 103 years ago.

After the error was corrected, she was issued a one-year, limited-term license which will allow her to drive anywhere in her neighborhood. She is among the 10 oldest Californians to hold a driver's license.

What state has the longest name, yet is the smallest state in the United States? "Rhode Island" is the answer.

"Rhode Island" is only a part of the state's full name. Its full, official name is "State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations."

Rhode Island is the name of the largest island of the state's 36 islands.

Providence Plantations is the name given long ago to the colonial settlements on the mainland part of the state.

The name tells us, then, that both islands and mainland make up the state of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

The real name is so long that it is hardly ever used.

An interesting fact about this tiny state is that it has nearly three times the population of Alaska, the largest state in the nation.

It is also one of the oldest states, and was the first of the 13 American colonies to declare independence of Great Britain.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other line prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
